have excellent Partridge Rocks.
I am also pleased to have another poultry pal. Mark & his son Brian are good guys and very enthusiastic about exhibition poultry. I will visit them this afternoon in Waymart from about 1 P.M. to 3:30 or so:
I'll take along Mark's cockerel when I go to the Church to pick up the money at noon. I am very pleased not to have to work at Wal-Mart today—
the first Sunday in three months that I have had off. I put in about seven hours there yesterday and had a grand time selling plants in the Garden Center.

At our annual awards banquet we will be giving an award for humanities. I have been asked to coordinate this effort among those teaching humanities courses. If you have had any outstanding students this academic year please give me their names.

Thank you.

I have had many outstanding students in the course of the year. What are the criteria for the award? Must they be graduating seniors?

Dear Mrs. Moore,

I'm having a grand time watching those 22 Black orpington Chicks grow. I very much appreciate the fact that you were willing to sell me the chicks. Some of the chicks I will cross into my strain of Black orpingtons; some of the chicks will mate with each other. That way I will have lots of possibilities for new blood when I need it.

There are not many orpingtons in this part of the country and mine always attract a lot of attention at shows.

your orpingtons are, I know, about the best that there are anywhere, and so I can hardly wait to show some of these 22
Texas beauties at the Fall and Winter shows and really show my colleagues what standard orpingtons are supposed to look like.

I've never had a better
year for hatching Chicks.
Besides the orpingtons, I also raise standard Partridge Rocks, standard Rose Comb Rhode Island
Reds, standard S.C. Red Modern Games and standard Golden Campines.

In addition I am also working on my own strain of standard Barred Rocks —

I am, I think, making good progress in developing a strain of Barred Rocks that look like standard Barred Rocks. Most of the standard Barred Rocks that I see at shows have short backs and no tails. I want standard Barred Rocks with long backs, stiff tail feathers and good Rock type.

I just now candled a dozen "extra special" eggs from my best trio of standard Partridge Rocks and I am very pleased to report that every egg is fertile!

Thanks again for the oppington.

Yours truly,

Robert Powell

The barn swallows returned today. Also, saw a male Myrtle Warbler just now in the foundation of the Grey Barn — I'm sure that it is the first & only one that I have ever seen. "Dendroica coronata coronata" — that's the official scientific name for the Myrtle Warbler. If Aunt Eleanor were alive, I would telephone her at once to report on the rare and wonderful sighting.

DEATHS and FUNERALS

MARY CAROLYN FORD "CAROL" VOTER, 72, of Chadds Ford, PA died February 27, 1993 at Riddle Memorial Hospital, Delaware County, PA of a severe stroke.

Married in 1945, she was the wife of Roger C. Voter. She was born in Crystal Lake, Illinois and spent her later childhood years in Fairfield, Iowa. She was a resident of Chadds Ford, PA for the last 25 years.

Carol served in the U.S. Army during World War II as a Technical Sergeant. Among her many interests, she was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), where she had served as her chapter's Regent, The National Railway Historical Society, The Dominique Club of America, and several other poultry organizations.

Her interest in poultry spanned 23 years, during which she and Roger worked primarily with large Dominiques. Carol helped found the Dominique Club in 1973 and served as the club's first Secretary/Treasurer. She and Roger exhibited their Dominiques at Poultry shows coast-to-coast at which their birds won many awards. She also bred Large Salmon Faverolles. Carol made friends with many people in the poultry hobby and truly enjoyed those special friendships.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by five sons, William Albert Voter of Fairport, NY, James Conant Voter of Virginia Beach, VA, Arthur Ford Voter of Santa Fe, NM, Warren Edgar Voter of Dresher, PA, and Richard Scott Voter of Mystic, CT; one brother, C. Hubbard Ford of Sebring, Ohio; one sister, Katharine Green of Hedrick, Iowa; and 10 grandchildren. (Roger Voter and Richard Voter.

Dear Robert

It was very pleasant to have received a response to my letter re:- March. Could be happy to know that the Executive Board meeting in Plainfield, N.J. on Sat. 4/17 was pleased to learn of your positive and enthusiastic reply to my letter of invitation to provide a Director to our G.F.A. Further, the idea of a joint Annual Meeting/Reunion in 1996 was met with approbation, if not "new territory". Clinton and environs sounds great to all of our members (17). So, we have lots to look forward to; a three-day affair, and hopefully Aug. and/or Oct. date can be debated by Cntl. & Ed Dir. & both organizations in future.

NAMING THE WINNERS

By S. Robert Powell

Carbondale, PA 18407-9706

Very specific and meaningful terminology has been developed and codified over a great many years for naming the winning birds in most poultry shows.

The best bird in each of the varieties of a breed is called "Best of Variety." BV is how most judges mark the coop tags. The best bantam Black Cochin in a show, for example, regardless of age and gender, is named "Best of Variety." The second best bantam Black Cochin is named "Reserve of Variety" or "RV." Technically speaking, the terms "Champion" and "Reserve Champion" should not be used to refer to the best and second best birds, respectively, in a variety, unless, of course, those winners are to be honored in some special way by a particular club or by the show itself.

Moving up the awards' ladder, the best bantam Cochin, for example, in a show, all varieties of bantam Cochins competing, is named the "Best of Breed." BB is how most judges mark the coop tags. The second best bantam Cochin in a show is named the "Reserve of Breed" or "RB." Technically speaking, the terms "Champion" and "Reserve Champion" should not be used to refer to the best and second best birds, respectively, in a breed, unless, of course, those winners are to be honored in some special way by a particular club or by the show itself.

In most APA/ABA-sanctioned poultry shows, one can expect classes for all varieties and breeds of standard chickens (APA: American, Asiatic, English, Mediterranean, Continental, All Other Standard Breeds), bantams (ABA: Modern Games, Old English and American Games, Single Comb Clean-Legged, Rose Comb Clean-Legged, Feather-Legged, All Other Combs Clean-Legged, Bantam Ducks), ducks (APA: Heavy, Medium, Light, Bantam), geese (APA: Heavy, Medium, Light), and turkeys (APA: all classed together). The champion or best bird in each of those classes (Rose Comb Clean-Legged, for example) is correctly referred to as the class champion (Champion Rose Comb Clean-Legged, Champion Asiatic, Champion Heavy Duck, Champion Light Goose, and so on).

The second best bird in each of those classes is correctly referred to as the reserve champion (Reserve Champion English, Reserve Champion Old English and American Game, Reserve Champion Light Duck, and so on). Please note that it is "Reserve Champion" and not "Reserved Champion." "Reserved" means "restrained in words and/or actions." In poultry circles and elsewhere, the adjective "reserve" means "second place." True, "reserve champions" do usually conduct themselves in a "reserved" manner but, for all that, they should not be called "reserved champions" unless, of course, one is contrasting them to "un-reserved" (out of control) champions.

There are five primary groupings or divisions of poultry at most poultry shows: standard chickens, bantam chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys. The best standard chicken in a show is the "Champion Standard," the best goose in a show is the "Champion Goose," and so on, for each of the five primary poultry groupings. The second best bird in each of the five primary poultry groupings listed above is properly refered to as, for example, the "Reserve Champion Standard."

In most poultry shows, there is one champion for each of the five primary poultry groupings or divisions: Champion Standard, Champion Bantam, Champion Duck, Champion Goose, Champion Turkey. A "Champion Waterfowl" is sometimes selected. The overall or first champion, chosen from among all the champions for the five primary groupings, is the "Grand Champion of the Show." If the second best bird in the show were to be selected, it would be called the "Reserve Champion of the Show." It is important to understand that the adjectives "grand" (meaning "first") and "reserve" (meaning "second") should not be used to modify the same noun. To say, "Reserve Grand Champion Bantam," for example, is incorrect. The corect term to describe that bird would be "Reserve Champion Bantam."

At the larger poultry shows, where bantam and standard trios are shown, a special award might be given to the best young and old trios in a variety, breed or class: Champion Old Standard Partridge Plymouth Rock Trio, Champion Young Sebright Trio, Champion Old Asiatic Trio, for example. At such shows, one might also expect to see an award presented to the Champion Bantam Trio, the Reserve Champion Bantam Trio, the Champion Standard Trio, and the Reserve Champion Standard Trio. Similarly, one might expect to see an award presented to the Champion Trio of the Show and to the Reserve Champion Trio of the Show.

The same is true for display awards at the larger APA-sanctioned shows. A display consists of a cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and three other birds all of the same variety. (The ABA has no awards for displays.)

One might see an award presented to the Champion Display and Reserve Champion Display in many varieties and breeds in all of the five primary poultry groupings (standard chickens, bantam chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys). In addition, a Champion Display and Reserve Champion Display might also be awarded for each of those five primary poultry groupings as a whole. A Champion Waterfowl Display and Reserve Champion Waterfowl Display might also be selected, as well as a Champion Display of the Show and Reserve Champion Display of the Show.

Those are the basic designations that are needed to describe the winning birds in most poultry shows. Specific additional award designations to accomodate the requirements of a poultry club or organization are entirely possible, as we have pointed out above. In those instances virtually any award title or name that is deemed appropriate by the club or organization in question is a possibility.

The central point of this article is this: very specific and meaningful terminology has been developed and codified over the course of a great many years for naming the winning birds in most poultry shows. Let's all do our best to use that terminology and to speak, as it were, the same language.

Boost beef cow heat detection and breeding results

BY HAROLD HARPSTER

Beef breeding season opens this month for most Northeast producers. Even producers with a few cows should seriously consider artificial insemination (AI).

The number of outstanding beef bulls available is mind-boggling. And estrus (heat) synchronization technology, now widely available, greatly aids conception rates for AI.

Despite all the technology, overall success of AI comes down to accurate heat detection. Catching a cow as she comes into heat cannot be overemphasized. Egg ovulation occurs about 30 hours after the start of standing heat. Her eggs are most fertile during the first six hours following ovulation.

Sperm live about 24 hours in the female tract, but need a few hours to become fertile. So best results occur when the sperm is present several hours before the egg is released.

When to breed a "standing" cow. When she's in standing heat (stands to be mounted by another animal) in the morning, she should be bred between noon and 6 p.m. the same day. When she's first observed in the afternoon or evening, she should be inseminated before noon on the next day. Breeding earlier or later than these times can significantly lower conception rates.

There's really no substitute for carefully watching cows during breeding season. Do it a minimum of 30 minutes in the early morning and evening for heat detection. And don't feed them while observing them, or heat will surely be missed as the cows eat.

A smart small-herd strategy. Small herds will likely have only one cow in heat at a time, so mounting activity can be easily missed. The most active hours for mounting are from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. During that time a cow may be mounted only once or twice an hour, and then for only about 10 seconds per mount. That's why it's difficult to "catch" cows in heat.

I'm a firm believer in "stacking the deck" — using a synchronization drug to concentrate observation times, and running an animal with the herd that's an active "heat checker."

Your heat checker options include a surgically-altered bull (probably the best option; expect to pay $75 to $100 for the surgery), a cull cow injected with testosterone, or a steer. In my experience, other cows are not reliable.

Try a composite bull? Some AI studs now offer semen from crossbred bulls developed as a "composite" of several breeds. They are similar in concept to what a number of large swine companies have done in developing "synthetic" breeds.

For example, in this spring's American Breeders Service beef bull catalog, you'll find a new breed known as the "Shaver Beefblend." It's a composite of 11 British and Continental breeds. They are moderate-sized, solid red, and polled.

Since these cattle are largely unrelated to most U.S. cattle, a commercial breeder can expect maximum "hybrid vigor" in the offspring. There's also some "paternal hybrid vigor" realized in using a crossbred bull with some reproductive traits such as increased conception rates.

A composite bull may be especially desirable for small commercial producers wanting to take advantage of crossbreeding.

Harpster, a Penn State animal scientist, also farms and raises beef part time. ❑

David Austin's® New English Roses

This totally new class of Roses is the result of nearly 40 years of work by the renowned English rose breeder, David Austin. His goal was to create a new kind of rose — repeat flowering, disease-resistant shrubs, suitable for even the smaller gardens of today. To accomplish these ends, Austin used a rich mixture of parents — various old shrub roses for their vigor, fragrance, disease resistance, beauty of form and attractiveness of foliage; and Floribunda or Cluster Roses to add modern colors, scents, glossy foliage and, above all, the ability to flower continuously throughout the season. The results have been astounding and successful beyond Austin's wildest dreams — shrubs that are graceful, clad in lovely foliage, hardy and disease-resistant, and that abundantly bear flowers of exquisite form, color and fragrance throughout the season. These roses will add charm, beauty and distinction to your garden for years to come!

Turn the page for our super New English Rose Offer!

Othello

Heritage - Popular favorite of the Austin Collection

Fair Bianca

Heritage®

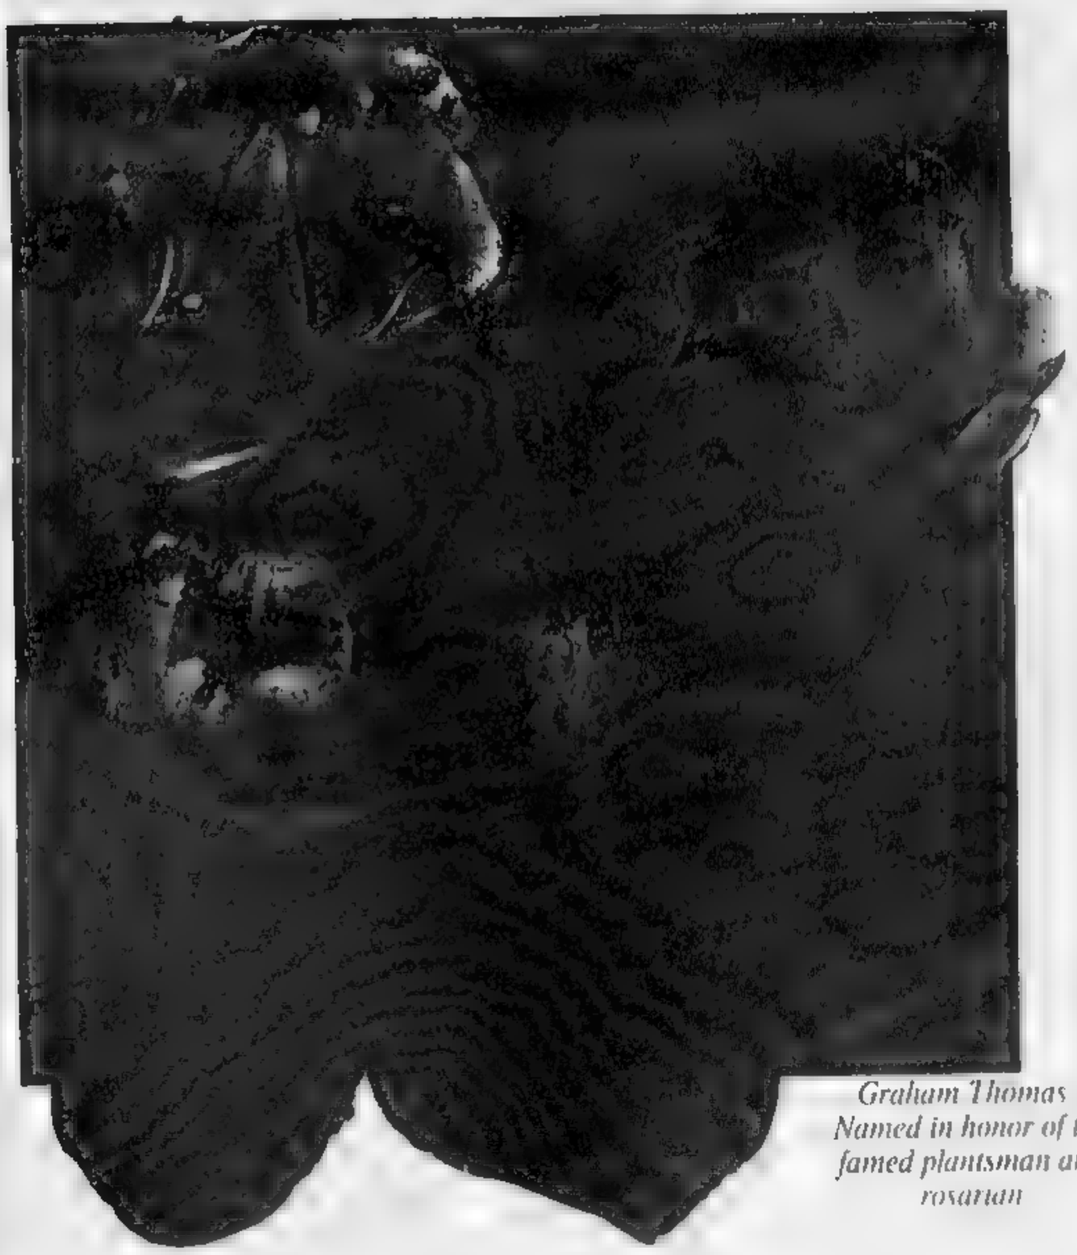

Everything a rose should be! Profusely borne in lovely sprays, the flowers have a perfection of form that is unequaled by any. The medium-sized, prettily cupped blossoms are of the clearest shell pink, and have a pronounced and unusual scent — that of Old Roses, with a strong overtone of lemon. They are generously produced throughout the summer in clusters. The plants are robust, compact and bushy, with strong, nearly thornless stems, and grow to 4 feet x 4 feet

Othello®

(PP 7212) Very large, full-petaled flowers of cupped form that mature to extremely full, rounded blooms. One of the richest colored of the new English Roses, it is rich dark crimson which later turns to pleasing shades of purple and mauve. Habit is robust, upright and bushy, with numerous strong thorns and dusky, dark green foliage. Very resistant to pests and disease. Exceptionally free flowering, with pronounced Old Rose fragrance. 5 feet x 5 feet

Fair Bianca®

A pure white rose with flowers of the most exquisite Old Rose conformation, reminiscent of the Gallica Roses, centered with distinct green eyes. The round buds open to pretty little cups filled with petals, later becoming saucer-shaped and finally curving back at the edges and revealing green eyes in their centers. The blooms are perfumed with the fragrance of myrrh. This lovely rose is especially good for the small garden, as it grows to a compact 4 x 3 feet

Graham Thomas
Named in honor of the famed plantsman and rosarian

Graham Thomas®

Named in honor of Graham Thomas, the great plantsman and rosarian who played a major part in restoring worldwide interest in the classic Old Roses, this splendid variety is acclaimed by some experts as the finest of all the David Austin roses. A sensation when first introduced at London's prestigious Chelsea Flower Show, it produces apricot buds that open to cupped- shaped flowers of rich, glistening yellow — a striking color rarely found in Old Roses. It performs marvelously despite heat and humidity, perfuming the air with its heady Tea fragrance. A vigorous yet elegant upright grower with light green foliage, growing 8 feet tall and 5 feet wide

1993

Mary Rose®

A true classic, with flowers of rich pink, with much of the beauty and charm, as well as the wonderful fragrance, of the old Damask roses. Neat and bushy, 4 feet by 4 feet, this robust shrub keeps on branching to produce new flowering shoots. One of the earliest of roses to begin flowering and one of the last to stop, it is rarely without bloom in between. May be pruned to any desired dimensions.

She says that she just now received the 1992 show report on the Buffalo show, and so they win the ribbon with "Madame Minnie" is now in the tabulation (meaning that I have 100 Master Exhibitor points, at least) but that it is too late to get me in the 1992 APA Yearbook as a Master Exhibitor! Shame on Bill Ziehm for his tardiness in reporting on the 1992 show! I also pointed out that I was told that the Twin Tier Show had 750+ birds; Nona will check again and correct the points if there were, in fact, 750+ birds judged. all in all a satisfying conversation

5/16/93 - 10 AM 2005

Eleven more standard Partridge Rock chicks out and about; and one more on the way. These are the 12 eggs that my pullets laid in the week ending 4/25, which is the week following the departure of Brian's cock. 9/18 I was sure that the fertility would be good, very good, for at least a week, and sure enough it was. I now have 28/29 (in about an hour) standard Partridge Rock chicks — which is wonderful. I never thought it would be possible for me to get some young from my pullets. And there are 15 more fertile eggs in the incubator: 9 due on 5/23 and 6 on 5/29, laid, respectively, two and three weeks after Brian's excellent rooster was returned to him. Immediately following the rooster's departure, I arranged "placements" by my excellent old standard Partridge Rock Cock, the one who won Champion American at the APA District meet at York in 1990. So, by whom are the 15 fertile eggs now in the incubator fertile? By lingering sperm from Brian's bird or from sperm from my bird? Impossible to tell. It makes little difference to me. The Chicks should be wonderful in any case.

The deadline for entering the Finger Lakes show is May 28th. Given the quarantine, can I show? I shall have to contact John Rebhuhn at once to find out. It has been six months, at least, since Columbus, and I am anxious to attend a poultry show.

Historical society preserves piece of the past

(This is the final installment in a series of selected stories written by Marywood College students enrolled in the school's feature-writing class.)

By Joe Bryer

THE PIONEERS are gone but their memories live on within the records of the Carbondale Historical Society and Museum. Volunteers are the lifeline of Hudson Coal Co. Employee records, dating from 1890 to 1962, cataloged and preserved on the third floor of Carbondale City Hall.

The founders of Carbondale Historical Society merged with the City Hall Restoration committee in 1981 to form The Carbondale Historical Society and Museum Inc. President S. Robert Powell is credited with having the foresight to include "museum" in its name to encourage donations of historical memorabilia.

The museum is open to the public at no charge every Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and contains rare Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. signs, switch locks, gravity coal car and passenger car parts, lanterns, and railroad dining car china.

Society members Rich Wagner and John Buberniak have built a display of HO guage train models in authentic D&H colors. Buberniak's slide presentation of the gravity railroad and canal travels to schools and other interested organizations.

"I have shown it at least 100 times in the past 10 years and it has been well received," Buberniak said. Buberniak serves as first vice president.

The museum does attract many first-time visitors, but the genealogical research section receives the most return visitors. Those people who want to trace their heritage can find books, documents and newspapers filled with information about early residents of the area from Vandling to Archbald and Clifford to Waymart. There are 300 family genealogies on file including a Surname Search Index.

"Every item we have is indexed, cataloged and entered into a log book indicating if it was a gift and who donated it. We can put our finger on everything we have," vice president Bob Price said.

"People come looking for a particular name and we can tell them all the places that name appears in our files," Buberniak said.

"You must remember that we have over 10,000 employee records of the D&H plus we have birth and death records from 1890, that's before the state started keeping records of vital statistics. We also have a local 'general store' customer ledger, day-by-day, going back to 1814. We have many records that predate Lackawanna County," he said.

The collection of researched family names is neatly organized into a donated sheet music cabinet that appears to be as well suited for its present purpose as when it served the musicians of Ben Franklin High School. These enterprising and energetic volunteers are adept at adapting.

"What we lack in funds we make up in ingenuity," Wagner said. "We're as handy with a paint brush as we are at creating a new use for discarded office furniture. We really recycle."

"We are available at any time to pick up donations," Wagner continued. "When Mrs. Rydzik called to say she had some old records that were destined for the trash heap, John and I were there in 20 minutes." That collection is considered by members to be of great genealogical importance.

Other items of great value in the collection are: birth and death records (1890-1912), naturalization records (1851-1875), City of Carbondale municipal bonds (1851), Carbondale Mayors Court proceedings (1851-1868), Maplewood Cemetery records (1832), D&H rolling stock and equipment blueprints, Carbondale city directories (1895-96), a post card collection, maps, tax records, Dundaff Republican (1828-32), and Carbondale Semiceentennial booklets (1901).

The originals are safe and secure due to the fragile nature of the paper and bindings but photocopies have been made of most of this collection for public use. The Society charges $3 a day to use the research facilities or offers memberships with no charge for researching.

Rita Scott serves the society as genealogist and secretary.

"She has been a member since day one. Her primary interest was to do her own family genealogy, however many times people would call asking for information and she volunteered to help us with research. That was ten years ago and she's been serving the society since that time, Buberniak said.

A treasure trove of historical and genealogical information awaits visitors who climb the three flights of steel steps, with its sculptured cast-iron balustrade, into the culture, the history, the industrial center that was Carbondale in the 19th century.

"George Tryon, one of the two contractors who built Carbondale City Hall, was my grandfather. This gives me a special interest in wanting to see the building maintained and used to benefit our citizens," Price said.

5/20/93 - 7:45 P.M.

- Brought down from the barn the two urns that used to be in Valley View and Shady Lane Cemeteries; put them together and positioned them by the side entrance to the house. Filled them with dirt. I will buy traditional urn plants tomorrow at Wal-Mart (geranium, vinca vine, dracenae, etc) and plant the urns with them. They are wonderfully bronical especially in a pair at the base of the steps: they are not identical although very similar. I also put out the sundial that DWP gave me in 1985; Norman set it and thought that it was "the one that was around here." I never knew, until today, that there was one in the cellar that was given to the Russell Homestead by Eleanor Jones. Also in the cellar we located the pedestal for the "gazing ball" that was given to the Homestead by Eleanor Jones so that "the peacocks could see themselves." Also the pedestal (broken) to the birdbath that used to stand by the stone path into Grandma Russell's flower garden. When Mom mentioned "where it used to stand, I suddenly remembered it from when we were small kids — probably about 40 years ago. I will find a new "gazing ball" somewhere and install the pedestal & ball somewhere near the garden. Planted today: about 150 gladiolus bulbs; 10 parsley plants; 10 sage plants and three rosemary plants.

also, made two Rhubarb pies, using Dad's mother's excellent recipe. It's been a busy and very enjoyable day at home; it has been too long since I've had such a day. I must make sure that the summer is filled with many such wonderful days. I turned down an offer to teach English 102 at Elk Lake (the Eugene County Community College satellite campus there) this summer and I hope that the Humanities class that I am scheduled to teach at Penn State, starting on Monday the 24th, does not materialize, due to insufficient enrollment. It has been an exhausting year of teaching and I need time off from the classroom.

LUZERNE COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE
English 102: Sections E and U, Dr. S. R. Powell, Spring Semester 1993
Prose Exam

1. Characterize briefly the three primary theories of what literature is.

2. What are some of the things that we, as readers, must do if we are to appreciate aesthetically a work in prose?

3. All writers have a style that is recognizably their own and which they use to convey their "story" to us, the readers. As such, a piece of literature can be seen as a performance in words. Comment on some of the different prose styles (showing and telling, colloquial speech, direct discourse, nominal style, verbal style, sentence length, etc.) that we have encountered in this course.

4. Robert Frost once said: "There is no story written that has any value at all, however straightforward it looks and free from doubleness, double entendre, and duplicity and double play, that you'd value at all if it didn't have intimations of something more than itself." Illustrate that statement by Frost with prose texts that we have read in this course.

5. In reading, "we may think we want nice stories with attractive heroes and heroines--persons whom we can fantasize as ourselves--and with lots of action and a happy ending and a reassuring moral, but what we are more likely to get from the great storytellers is a subversive story, a story that does not confirm the values we already hold but that, rather, seeks to induce new values in us" or which, at the very least, as Kafka said, attempts "to wake us, as with a fist hammering on our skull." How and to what extent are some of the prose works that we have read in this course subversive? How do they "hammer on our skull"?

6. Which, in your opinion, is "the best" work in prose that we have read? Why? What is the value of writing about literature? Describe briefly two common approaches to writing about literature.

Dr. John H. Wilson
Dean of the College
Keystone Junior College
Post Office Box 50
La Plume, PA 18440-0200

Dear Dean Wilson:

I would like to present my candidacy for the full-time temporary faculty position at Keystone Junior College, beginning with the academic year 1993-1994. A copy of my current resume is enclosed.

During the academic year 1990-1991, I taught in the Department of Modern Languages at Susquehanna University as a Visiting Assistant Professor of French. During my time there, I taught courses in elementary French, advanced French composition and conversation, and nineteenth-century French literature. During my very busy and immensely rewarding term of service at Susquehanna University, Dr. Jack Kolbert, the Chairman of the Department of Modern Languages, observed me teaching and he will be pleased to report to you not only on the quality of my teaching but also on the strength of my commitment to and enthusiasm for undergraduate education. Dr. Kolbert's phone numbers are: (office) 717-372-4283 and (home) 717-37 -2914.

In the fall of 1991, I accepted a position as an adjunct member of the faculty at the Worthington Scranton campus of Penn State and have been teaching Humanities there for the last two years. During the summer session there that began yesterday, I am again teaching Humanities. To have been given the opportunity to teach undergraduate courses in the Humanities, which I have wanted to do for many years, has had an extraordinary tonic-like effect on my critical thinking. At the same time, it presents exciting new challenges to familiar pedagogical methods because I am, as it were, teaching outside of my field of specialization. Dr. K. Bruce Sherbine, the Director of Academic Affairs at Penn State, will be pleased to report to you on the success of my teaching and on my qualities as a member of the academic community. Dr. Sherbine's telephone number at Penn State is 963-4756.

In the fall of 1992, I was asked to initiate a program of courses in French in Luzerne County Community College and during the spring semester 1992, as an adjunct member of the faculty, taught French at the main campus of LCCC. In the spring of 1993, I was asked to teach two sections of English 102 at Luzerne County Community College--one at the Susquehanna campus and one at the Elk Lake campus. English 102 ("Composition and Literature II") at LCCC, emphasis is placed on supplementary and correlative readings in prose, poetry and drama as the basis for theme papers. The textbook that we used is AN INTRODUCTION TO LITERATURE by Barnet, Berman and Burto. Teaching those two sections of English 102 was, for me, very stimulating and rewarding, and I look forward to teaching additional composition and literature-based writing courses in the future.

My complete placement credentials are on file at the Career Development and Placement Center at Penn State and, at your request, I shall be pleased to make the necessary arrangements to have a copy sent to you.

In the meantime, Dr. Kolbert at Susquehanna University and Dr. Sherbine at Penn State University, as well as the Rev. Gordon S. Wilson, pastor of the Berean Baptist Church of Carbondale (telephone: 282-1511), will be pleased to endorse my application for this full-time position at Keystone Junior College.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Good Luck!

5/26/93 2026

Dear Tony,

Your "letter to the editor" on early cooping out is right on target. I am in complete agreement with you. Security is a problem at most shows. Something has to be done to correct the problem. Possibly your letter will help correct the situation as it now stands.

Glad to see you are offering American Game eggs for sale. A guy by the name of Mark Langford wanted to get some chicks, adults a egg from me and I don't have any available at present. I gave him your name, address and telephone number.

My two objectives for the year with reference to my American Game bantams are: (1) improve the stippling in the females, and (2) decrease the size of my birds. I have a dozen chicks from a special mating of American Games, and the half-grown chicks are looking very promising. Time will tell.

I'm going to show a couple B.B. Red American Game bantam pullets at Syracuse on 6/6/93. Maybe I'll run into you there.

Sincerely,

5/31/93 2028

Dear Robert,

I have 40 chicks from my trio of Rose Comb R I R's. Two first chicks were hatched on 1/16 and the last ones were hatched on 4/18. Some of the older chicks are starting to show up and I am very excited by the possibilities. Instead of trading eggs, why don't we trade young birds? Tell me the qualities that you want in the birds and I will do my best to make available to you exactly what you are looking for. Maybe we coued do some trading at Columbus in November? Maybe before that. If you were here, you coued pick out the ones that you wanted.

Your column in Poultry Press is wonderful. Thanks to you Rhode Island Reds are again getting the publicity they deserve.
I'm sorry I didn't get to make your acquaintance in Columbus last November. I tried "to talk Reds" on a couple occasions with the leading breeders of Reds who were showing there and I was rudely dismissed by them as an outsider. They were so involved with their in-crowd behavior (if you are not a member of the "Red Baron" you apparently do not exist) that all dialogue with outsiders was out of the question.
Adrian Rademacher was, unlike

and willing "to talk Reds" with people like me who are new to Reds (but I am not exactly a greenhorn when it comes to several other breeds of exhibition poultry). Knowing what I know about you from your letter and articles, I'm sure that if I had been fortunate enough to run into you among the Rhode Island Reds at Columbus that it would have been a very pleasant experience to visit with you and "to talk Reds." As it was, I avoided the Rhode Island Red section (except to feed my R. C. Cockerel) because of the ill-mannered behavior of a couple of Red Barons.

I would be very pleased to write an article for the proposed Rhode Island Red Yearbook. Yes, I could write an article on using broody hens to hatch and raise chicks. At the moment I have seven B.B. Red American Game bantam hens, each raising four standard Chicks (Rose comb R.I.R's, Partridge Rocks and modern Games). It's amusing to observe them when the Chicks become the same size (or bigger) than their "mother."

It's always a pleasure to hear from you, and I look forward to hearing from you again.

Sincerely,

Robert Powell

I would love to have the job and will make all necessary inquiries tomorrow. A full-time job at Mountain View would be superb! MINUTES OF THE EXECUTIVE BOARD--APRIL 17, 1993

Meeting called to order by the President, Don Griswold, at 1:08 p.m. at the home of Dr. Merton Griswold and Mary Griswold. In attendance were: Don Griswold (and Ruth), Jim Griswold (and Bonnie), Esther French, Sara French, Robert French, Dick Griswold, Janet Mann, Merton Griswold (and Mary), Virginia Lake, Barbara Ryan, Barbara Michie, Joan Griswold.

Secretary pro tem.: Sara French appointed.

Agenda approved by acclamation with one change: treasurer's report was moved to item 6 after house report.

Joan Griswold presented the scholarship committee report: three students expressed interest: David Raines of California, a h.s. senior; Beth Griswold, Central Conn. State U.; Amanda McLean, Skidmore Coll. This year's essay topic: "Do you think that the U.S. military should involve itself in humanitarian projects around the world?"

Dick asked if formal announcement should be placed in next bulletin--it was noted that the bulletin would come out after the May 1 deadline for applications. There is $2000 available. An announcement of the recipient(s) will be made in the fall.

Dick Griswold presented the house committe report, noting short term goals for 1993-4 have mostly been fulfilled. Reassessment of long-term projects should be made at the fall meeting. A tree maintenance contract for two years has been filled and the installation of two attic and two basement windows will start next week at a total cost of $1153. Much masonry work must be done on the basement windows. Rewiring in the attic has been done. Two plaster and 2 1/2 ceilings have been replaced in the dining and keeping rooms. The panelling, woodwork, and ceiling in dining room have been painted in teal and off white, a traditional colonial colour scheme. The insurance company is doing an insurance replacement cost survey, appraising and evaluating the coverage. They require increased coverage from $161,000 to $173,000 for 100% replacement coverage. The contract is up on 5/27/93, and the house committee will renegotiate the contract. Myron Baldwin, a member of GFA, with Middlesex Mutual Insurance will review policy for 1994 coverage. The cost for the policy will increase to approx. $500 from $460. The long-term rental contract with Dick and Evelyn is up in 1994 and must be discussed at the October meeting.

Two projects on the short-term list have not yet been completed: replacing the water-course along the base of the house with a drip edge to deflect the water. The molding must be hand-tooled, and the job must be hired out. Locally, Willard Restorations gave an estimate of +/-$1500. Jim Griswold suggested staying with this company as they have often done work in the past. Unanimity on allowing the contract to be given to Willard Restoration.

The lawn must be taken care of--fertilized, weeded with treatment, and a bug watch. Unanimity on contract approval (cost approx. $230 for one year contract). Next year Dick will review the storm windows, siding and the dry walls. House committe composed of Dick Griswold, Marge Heath and Lymon Griswold.

Don extended the appreciation of the Board to Dick and family for their careful custody of the house.

Treasurer's Report (see attached) note: the 1993 new life memberships will be put in the trust fund.

Barbara Ryan reported that the Association had grossed less than $25,000 in income for three years and yet had paid estimated tax. She requested the Board approve the consultation of a tax professional conversant with the laws regarding corporations especially in Connecticut, and seek the refund of approx. $3600 for the past three years. Three years establishes the precedent for not paying tax to IRS. As a non-profit corporation (501(C)7), we are under a certain set of rules, and a tax professional would be the likeliest person to be able to handle the complexities. Vote of confidence requested to empower the treasurers' to seek help. Moved by Dick Griswold, seconded by Gini Lake. Passed unanimously.

Esther French, genealogist, reported that the first Roots computer program sale. The genealogists, upon inquiry from Barbara M., recommended that Volumes IV and V not be reprinted to number of errors. Bob note that Spicer, Charlie Raines, and Bill Miller have all been corresponding with the Frenches and Bob has been entering the results on the new computer. Extensive discussion of computer complexities elided Virginia Lake's report to the genealogists' report. Janet Mann moved that a committee on information dissemination (computer and hard-copy) as well as merchandising same be formed composed of Bob and Esther French, Graydon and Marquetta Brown and Gini Lake. Emphasis to be placed on a membership outreach package to include a membership, a printout/book, and other options for genealogical information resources. Seconded by B. Ryan. Passed by acclamation.

Preparation for trip to England reported by Bob--research projects outlined. Gini Lake moved to allow the Frenches to rent a lap-top computer to take with them to facilitate their research. Seconded by Barbara R. Passed by acclamation.

The generation 6 research is on-going (research trip 4/19-4/23 to Steele Memorial Library, Elmira, NY).

A suggestion was made to charge for searches: B. Ryan moved to allow the genealogists to charge a flat $25.00 search fee for information requests by disk or print-out. Ammended by Gini to include only those requests submitted on a standardized form with clear statement of goal of request. Seconded by Joan Griswold. Approved by acclamation.

Registrar's report corrected with deletion of N from Brunso. Barbara Michie added that of the 48 people not paid in 1992, 11 have not paid for '91 and will be dropped. The 37 left will be carried until end of 1993. Reminders will be sent to these. Esther French moved to accept report. Seconded by Merton Griswold. Passed by acclamation.

Dick Griswold reported that the Heritage Tour was off and running with 25 reservations and 2 more possibles. Itinerary was pretty much set, and the cost will be below expected $2000 (approx. $1700).

Reunion 1993, October 9, at Keeney Memorial Centre in Wethersfield, CT. 8:30-4:00; lunch will be catered and will cost about $6.00. The Executive Board will meet Friday October 8 at 6 pm for a pot-luck supper at the Griswoldville Chapel.

The program for the day--an arts/crafts and hobby/collecting theme for exchange of personal leisure activities and a walking tour of the historic houses of Old Wethersfield. A request will be sent by Don to a likely candidate to assist Myron Baldwin with reservations.

GFA Bulletin number 100 will be out by mid-May. the Zip code Plus 4 will be required soon for all third class mailings.

Jim Griswold reported that the Brochure was ready (prepared by Gini Lake) and asked for ideas on strategies for using it to get more members. Janet Mann brought up, during the discussion of member recruitment strategies to be implemented through this brochure, that the By-Laws of the Association require all members to prove their descent from one of the four Griswolds, and be sponsored by a member and approved at the annual meeting. A suggestion was made to form a committee to change the By-Laws (which may be ammended by a 2/3 majority at the annual meeting after submission to the Executive Board. Barbara Ryan called for a formal vote to form a committee, to study the By-Laws and implement the relaxation of the membership requirements, chaired by Janet Mann and including the Vice President, Dr. John Griswold, and Dr. Merton Griswold. Seconded by Gini Lake, passed unanimously.

Jim Griswold then reported on the Endowment Fund--the Connecticut National Bank had been taken over by the Shawmut Bank, and we must watch the funds very carefully during the next year to see how the change affects GFA investments. We will continue to have the same finance manager. The fund earns about $14,000 per annum, with a market value of $289,000 as of 31 December 1992.

New Business: Insurance for the annual meeting is required by the Keeney center according to Myron (reported through Dick Griswold). A general liability policy was approved for $500,000 Personal Injury coverage at a premium of $198/year. Fiduciary liability and Single Event policies were prohibitively expensive and were rejected. Barbara Ryan moved to approve the general liability insurance plan. Seconded by Jim Griswold. Passed unanimously.

A letter from the N.E. PA Griswold reunion (Robert Powell) was read by the secretary. Suggestion that a representative from that organization be included on the board to be ratified at the annual meeting was unanimously approved.

Esther French reported that the Latter Day Saints library in Salt Lake City requested permission to microfilm the First Five Generations to be loaned within the L.D.S. family research centre network. Gini moved to grant approval provided that L.D.S. give GFA a copy. Passed unanimously.

A discussion was opened on the possible location of the 1994 reunion to be held September 30, October 1 & 2. Dr. Merton Griswold suggested Morristown NJ, to be investigated by him and Janet Mann. Bob French noted that "there were an awful lot of Griswolds in Walpole NH." Once this town was located, Bob and Esther French volunteered to investigate this locale as a possibility as well.

The Board enthusiastically expressed their thanks to Dr. Merton and Mary for hosting the meeting. Adjourned at 4:20 p.m.

NAMING THE WINNERS

By S. Robert Powell

Very specific and meaningful terminology has been developed and codified over a great many years for naming the winning birds in most poultry shows.

The best bird in each of the varieties of a breed is called "Best of Variety". BV is how most judges mark the coop tags. The best batnam Black Cochin in a show, for example, regardless of age and gender, is named "Best of Variety". The second best bantam Black Cochin is named "Reserve of Variety" or "RV". Technically speaking, the terms "Champion" and "Reserve Champion" shou'd not be used to refer to the best and second best birds, respectively, in a variety, unless, of course, those winners are to be ho ıored in some special way by a particular club or by the show itself.

Moving up the awards' ladder, the best bantam Cochin, for example, in a show, all varieties of bantam Cochins competing, is named the "Best of Breed". BB is how most judges mark the coop tags. The second best bantam Cochin in a show is named the "Reserve of Breed" or "RB". Technically speaking, the terms "Champion" and "Reserve Champion" should not be used to refer to the best and second best birds, respectively, in a breed, unless, of course, those winners are to be honored in some special way by a particular club or by the show itself.

In most APA/ABA-sanctioned poultry shows, one can expect classes for all varieties and breeds of standard chickens (APA: American, Asiatic, English, Mediterranean, Continental, All Other Standard Breeds), bantams (ABA: Modern Games, Old English and American Games, Single Comb Clean-Legged, Rose Comb Clean-Legged, Feather-Legged, All Other Combs Clean-Legged, Bantam Ducks), ducks (APA: Heavy, Medium, Light, Bantam), geese (APA: Heavy, Medium, Light), and turkeys (APA: all classed together). The champion or best bird in each of those classes (Rose Comb Clean-Legged, for example) is correctly referred to as the class champion (Champion Rose Comb Clean-Legged, Champion Asiatic, Champion Heavy Duck, Champion Light Goose, and so on).

The second best bird in each of those classes is correctly referred to as the reserve champion (Reserve Champion English, Reserve Champion Old English and American Game, Reserve Champion Light Duck, and so on). Please note that it is "Reserve Champion" and not "Reserved Champion". "Reserved" means "restrained in words and/or actions." In poultry circles and elsewhere, the adjective "reserve" means "second place." True, "reserve champions" do usually conduct themselves in a "reserved" manner but, for all that, they should not be called "reserved champions" unless, of course, one is contrasting them to "unreserved" (out of control) champions.

There are five primary groupings or divisions of poultry at most poultry shows: standard chickens, bantam chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys. The best standard chicken in a show is the "Champion Standard," the best goose in a show is the "Champion Goose," and so on, for each of the five primary poultry groupings. The second best bird in each of the five primary poultry groupings listed above is properly refered to as, for example, the "Reserve Champion Standard".

In most poultry shows, there is one champion for each of the five primary poultry groupings or divisions: Champion Standard, Champion Bantam, Champion Duck, Champion Goose, Champion Turkey. A "Champion Waterfowl" is sometimes selected. The overall or first champion, chosen from among all the champions for the five primary groupings, is the "Grand Champion of the Show". If the second best bird in the show were to be selected, it would be called the "Reserve Champion of the Show". It is important to understand that the adjectives "grand" (meaning "first") and "reserve" (meaning "second") should not be used to modify the same noun. To say, "Reserve Grand Champion Bantam," for example, is incorrect. The correct term to describe that bird would be "Reserve Champion Bantam".

At the larger poultry shows, where bantam and standard trios are shown, a special award might be given to the best young and old trios in a variety, breed or class: Champion Old Standard Partridge Plymouth Rock Trio,

Champion Young Sebright Trio, Champion Old Asiatic Trio, for example. At such shows, one might also expect to see an award presented to the Champion Bantam Trio, the Reserve Champion Bantam Trio, the Champion Standard Trio, and the Reserve Champion Standard Trio. Similarly, one might expect to see an award presented to the Champion Trio of the Show and to the Reserve Champion Trio of the Show.

The same is true for display awards at the larger APA-sanctioned shows. A display consists of a cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and three other birds all of the same variety. (The ABA has no awards for displays.)

One might see an award presented to the Champion Display and Reserve Champion Display in many varieties and breeds in all of the five primary poultry groupings (standard chickens, bantam chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys). In addition, a Champion Display and Reserve Champion Display might also be awarded for each of those five primary poultry groupings as a whole. A Champion Waterfowl Display and Reserve Champion Waterfowl Display might also be selected, as well as a Champion Display of the Show and Reserve Champion Display of the Show.

Those are the basic designations that are needed to describe the winning birds in most poultry shows. Specific additional award designations to accomodate the requirements of a poultry club or organization are entirely possible, as we have pointed out above. In those instances virtually any award title or name that is deemed appropriate by the club or organization in question is a possibility.

The central point of this article is this: very specific and meaningful terminology has been developed and codified over the course of a great many years for naming the winning birds in most poultry shows. Let's all do our best to use that terminology and to speak, as it were, the same language. S. Robert Powell, RD#1 Box 40, Carbondale, Pennsylvania 18407-9706.

THE COLUMBIAN VARIETY

By S. Robert Powell

To commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America in 1492 by Christopher Columbus, the World's Columbian Exposition, which was dedicated on October 23, 1892, and opened in May, 1893, was held in Chicago.

On display at that gigantic exposition, which covered 666 acres and which was attended by one of every ten Americans, were such wonders as the Pullman car, the linotype machine, the first ferris wheel (which 2,160 people could ride at one time), and COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES.

From the APA's THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION (p. 47) we learn (1) that this was the first time that Columbian Wyandottes were exhibited, and (2) that that variety was produced by crossing a White Wyandotte with a Barred Plymouth Rock.

The word "Columbian," it is important to remember, is the adjective that refers to "Columbus" or to "the time of Columbus." And so, COLUMBIAN Wyandottes were so named in order to commemorate the fact that they were first exhibited at the exposition that marked the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America.

The Columbian color pattern, of course, was around for a long time before the World's Columbian Exposition. Light Brahmas, which were admitted to THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION in 1874, bear the Columbian color pattern. Light Brahmas are known, as we all know, as Light Brahmas and not as Columbian Brahmas. Similarly, Buff Brahmas, which were recognized by the APA in 1924, are known as Buff Brahmas, and not as Buff Columbian Brahmas.

But all other breeds and varieties of poultry (with the exception of the bantam and standard Light Sussex) that bear the Columbian color pattern are identified as either Columbian or Buff Columbian.

The Columbian color pattern is recognized for the following breeds of standards: Light Brahmas, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, S.C. Leghorns, and Light Sussex (same as Columbian color pattern but male has white saddle). The Buff Columbian color pattern is officially recognized for only one breed of standards: Buff Brahmas.

In addition to the descriptions of the Columbian and Buff Columbian color patterns that are found in the APA's THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION and the ABA's THE BANTAM STANDARD, the reader should consult two recent articles by Bob Arbuckle in the APA's FANCY FEATHERS APA NEWS AND VIEWS: "Surface and Undercolor in Buff Brahmas," Summer 1989, p. 12; "The Buff Columbian dialog, several months later," Spring 1990, p. 9.

Since it was 100 years ago this May that Columbian Wyandottes were first exhibited, wouldn't it be a good idea for individuals and clubs to sponsor specials at this year's shows for "Best Columbian" and "Best Buff Columbian" in both bantams and standards? Wouldn't that be a highly appropriate manner for the exhibition poultry fraternity to honor those breeders who created the Columbian and Buff Columbian color patterns? Wouldn't that be an entirely fitting way, at the same time, for the poultry fanciers of America to commemorate the 500th anniversary of the discovery of America? S. Robert Powell, Rd 1 Box 40, Carbondale, Pennsylvania, 18407-9706.

STERLING SILVER LAPEL PINS

S. ROBERT POWELL'S BIRDS WON
TWO OF THEM AT THIS YEAR'S SHOW.

FINGER LAKES FEATHER CLUB SHOW

By Bill Ehlers, Secty.

Finger Lakes Feather Club 35th annual was just as good as we all had hoped it would be. After the long winter and cold spring, here in Central New York, it was a pleasure to have a decent day and see old and new friends for the first time in many months.

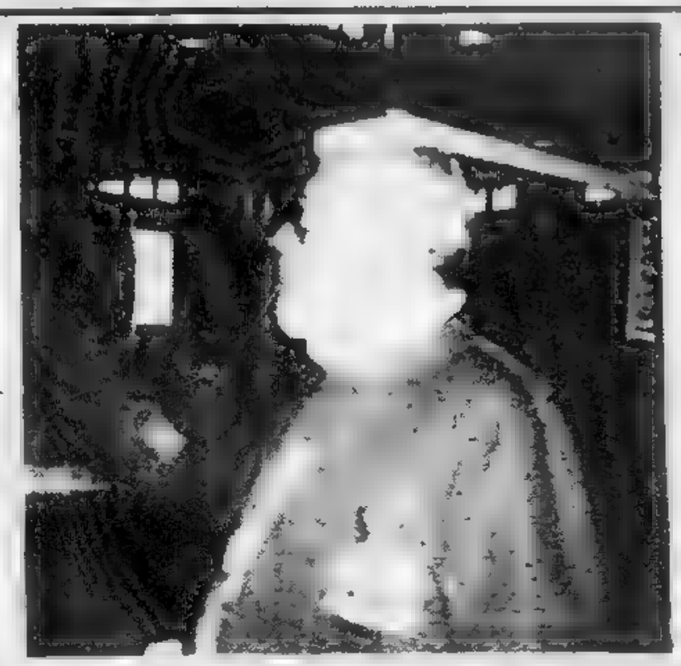

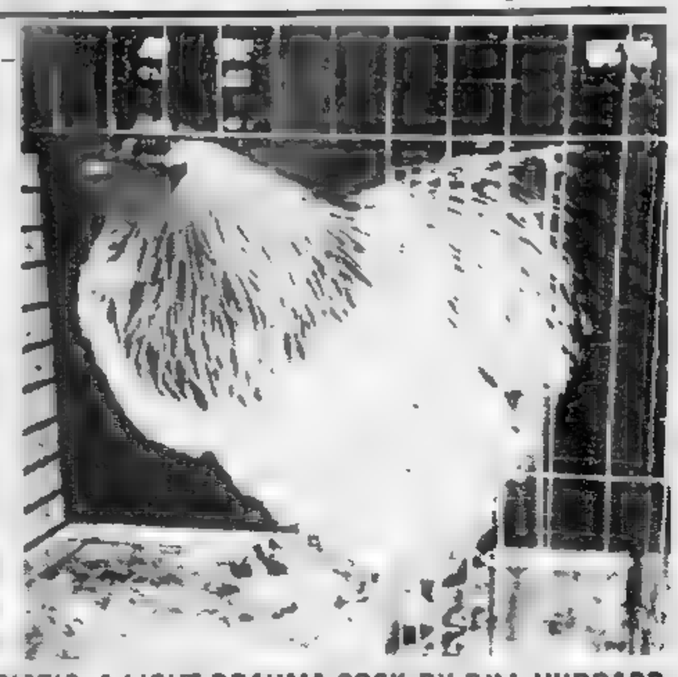

Our two fine judges, Ernie Durb and Jerry Yeaw, got right to work promptly at 10 a.m. and by 2:30 had made their final decisions. They did an excellent job with some very hard choices made. Assisting these gentlemen as clerks were Mat Pierce and Bob Richie. These two young men did, as well, an outstanding job. FLFC say's thank you gentlemen!

It was a pleasure for this writer to see, talk and be part of the Club that honored Alex Duffy. Alex arrived about 1:30 and had some time to meet old friends jand reminisce with many, before the ceremony. Alex, it was a pleasure and honor to be able to recognize you and your many contributions to the fancy and to so many individuals such as myself! Thanks Alex and keep those letters coming to the Poultry Press.

Don and Sue Nelson from Wyoming, Rhode Island had Champion Large Fowl on a RI Red cock. Rick Hare here from Colden had Reserve Champion Large Fowl on a Golden Phoenix Cock. The Champion Bantam was won by George Schroeder from Prompton, PA, with a Black Cochin Cock. George now we know why you are such a good judge, bring one bird to the show and win it all, no muss no fuss! Reserve Champion Bantam was David Bethel Sr. from Lincoln, RI, on a very nice Blue Red OE Game cock. It was nice to see Dave win as I know he has worked hard to achieve this win. Art Lundgren from Jamestown, NY took all the Waterfowl honors with Champion Waterfowl on a Black East Indies hen and Reserve Champion Waterfowl on a Gray Call cock.

I hope that all our friends that showed and visited with use had enjoyable time. The Club wishes to thank you all for being part of our 35th show and hope you will consider showing again with us in '94 or soon thereafter. Till next year, have a great summer!

MEMORANDUM

TO: Faculty

FROM: Dr. John Pisano, Vice President for Academic Affairs

RE: Evaluation Report

DATE: June 9, 1993

Enclosed is a copy of the evaluation reports which were completed this semester on both our off-campus and on campus instructors. Also included is a copy of the evaluation model. Please review the results of this report.

In order to help you understand the report, I will attempt to explain how to read it.

Items one through twenty were the questions asked on the survey. The bottom of the report indicates the results of the evaluation. The first line (your average) is the average score which you received for each question.

Line two is the total population average for each question.

Line three indicates the population standard deviation for each question.

Since the analysis uses the 5% confidence level, any score which is 1.56% standard deviation from the norm is considered to be statistically significant. This is indicated on the last line with a double asterisk.

It is suggested that each instructor compare his scores to the appropriate questions in the survey and attempt to make modifications which, in the future, will result in a more acceptable evaluation.

In some instances, your department chairperson will be contacting you to discuss these evaluations.

OTHER IMPORTANT AGREEMENTS

Ownership and Risk of Loss. You agree to pay the Creditor all you owe under this contract even if the vehicle is damaged, destroyed or missing. You agree not to remove the vehicle from the United States or Canada or to sell, rent, lease or otherwise transfer any interest in the vehicle or this contract without the Creditor's written permission. You agree not to expose the vehicle to misuse or confiscation. You will make sure the Creditor's security interest (lien) on the vehicle is shown on the title. If the Creditor pays any repair bills, storage bills, taxes, fines, or other charges on the vehicle, you agree to repay the amount when the Creditor asks for it.

Security Interest. You give the Creditor a security interest in (1) the vehicle being purchased, (2) any accessories, equipment and replacement parts installed in the vehicle, (3) any insurance premiums and charges for service contracts returned to the Creditor, (4) any proceeds of insurance policies or service contracts on the vehicle, and (5) any proceeds of insurance policies on your life or health which are financed in this contract. This secures payment of all amounts you owe in this contract, or which you may owe under any separate insurance finance agreement with the Creditor or the Creditor's assignee, and in any transfer, renewal, extension or assignment of this contract. It also secures your other agreements in this contract.

Prepayment Refund. You can prepay all of your debt and get a refund of part of the Finance Charge. The refund will be figured by the Actuarial Method except that no refund will be paid which results in a net finance charge of less than $10. There will be no refund paid to you if it is less than $1.00.

Required Physical Damage Insurance. You agree to have physical damage insurance covering loss or damage to the vehicle for the term of this contract. At any time during the term of this contract, if you do not have physical damage insurance which covers both the interest of you and the Creditor in the vehicle, then the Creditor may buy it for you. If the Creditor does not buy physical damage insurance which covers both interests in the vehicle, it may, if it decides, buy insurance which covers only the Creditor's interest.

The Creditor is under no obligation to buy any insurance, but may do so if it desires. If the Creditor buys either of these coverages, it will let you know what type it is and the charge you must pay, if any. The charge will consist of the cost of the insurance and a finance charge, at the highest lawful contract rate. You agree to pay the charge in equal instalments, either along with the payments shown on the payment schedule, or as a separate account set up for this purpose.

If the vehicle is lost or damaged, you agree that the Creditor can use any insurance settlement either to repair the vehicle or to apply to your debt.

Late Charge. You will have to pay a late charge on each payment received by the Creditor more than ten days late. The charge is shown on the front. Acceptance of a late payment or late charge does not excuse your late payment or mean that you can keep making payments after they are due. The Creditor may also take the steps set forth below if there is any late payment.

Optional Insurance or Service Contracts. This contract may contain charges for optional insurance or service contracts. If the vehicle is repossessed, you agree that the Creditor may claim benefits under these contracts and terminate them to obtain refunds for unearned charges.

Insurance or Service Contract Charges Returned to Creditor. If any charge for required insurance is returned to the Creditor, it may be credited to your account or used to buy similar insurance or insurance which covers only the Creditor's interest in the vehicle. Any refund on optional insurance or service contracts obtained by the Creditor will be credited to your account.

Credits to your account will include both the amounts received by the Creditor and the unearned Finance Charges on those amounts. These break any of the agreements in this contract (default), the Creditor can take the vehicle from you, after giving you any notice required by law. To take the vehicle the Creditor can enter your property, or the property where it is stored, so long as it is done peacefully. If there is any personal property in the vehicle, such as clothing, the Creditor can store it for you. Any accessories, equipment or replacement parts will remain with the vehicle.

Getting the Vehicle Back After Repossession. If the Creditor repossesses the vehicle you have the right to get it back (redeem) by paying the entire amount you owe on the contract (not just past due payments) plus any late charges, the cost of taking and storing the vehicle and other expenses that the Seller or the Creditor has had. In figuring the entire amount you owe on the contract, the Creditor will give you a refund for part of the finance charge figured the same as if you had prepaid your contract. Your right to redeem will end when the vehicle is sold.

Sale of the Repossessed Vehicle. The Creditor will send you a written notice of sale at least 15 days before selling the vehicle. If you do not redeem the vehicle by the date on the notice, the Creditor can sell it. The Creditor will use the net proceeds of the sale to pay all or part of your debt.

The net proceeds of sale will be figured this way: Any late charges and any charges for taking and storing the vehicle, cleaning and advertising etc., and any reasonable attorney fees and court costs will be subtracted from the selling price.

If you owe the Creditor less than the net proceeds of sale, the Creditor will pay you the difference, unless required to pay it to someone else. For example, the Creditor may be required to pay a lender who has given you a loan and also taken a security interest in the vehicle.

If you owe more than the net proceeds of sale, you will pay the Creditor the difference between the net proceeds of sale and what you owe when the Creditor asks for it. If you do not pay this amount when asked, you may also be charged interest at the highest lawful rate until you do pay all you owe to the Creditor.

Collection Costs. If the Creditor hires an attorney to collect what you owe, you will pay the attorney's reasonable fee and any court costs.

Delay in Enforcing Rights and Changes of this Contract. The Creditor can delay or refrain from enforcing any of its rights under this contract without losing them. For example, the Creditor can extend the time for making some payments without extending others. Any change in terms of this contract must be in writing and signed by the Creditor. No oral changes are binding. If any part of this contract is not valid, all other parts will remain enforceable.

Warranties Seller Disclaims. You understand that if the vehicle is principally used for business or agricultural purposes, or if you are informed in writing prior to sale that the vehicle is sold on an "as is" basis and that you are responsible for the entire risk as to the quality of performance of the vehicle, there is no implied warranty of merchantability, no implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose and no implied warranty which extends beyond the description of the vehicle on the other side of this contract, unless the Seller extends a written warranty or service contract within 90 days from the date of this contract.

An implied warranty of merchantability generally means that the vehicle is fit for the ordinary purpose for which such vehicles are generally used. A warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is a warranty that may arise when the Seller has reason to know the particular purpose for which you require the vehicle and you rely on the Seller's skill or judgment to furnish a suitable vehicle.

This provision does not affect any warranties covering the vehicle which may be provided by the vehicle manufacturer.

Used Car Buyers Guide. The information you see on the window charge for required insurance is returned to the Creditor, it may be credited to your account or used to buy similar insurance or insurance which covers only the Creditor's interest in the vehicle. Any refund on optional insurance or service contracts obtained by the Creditor will be credited to your account.

Credits to your account will include both the amounts received by the Creditor and the unearned Finance Charges on those amounts. These credits will be applied to as many of your instalments as they will cover, beginning with the final instalment. You will be notified of what is done.

Required Repayment in Full Before the Scheduled Date. If you fail to pay any payment according to the payment schedule; if a proceeding in bankruptcy, receivership or insolvency is started by you or against you or your property; or if you break any of the agreements in this contract (default), the Creditor can demand that you pay all you owe on this contract at once, upon giving any notice required by law. In figuring what you owe, the Creditor will give you a refund of part of the Finance Charge figured the same as if you had prepaid in full.

Repossession of the Vehicle for Failure to Pay. Repossession means that, if you fail to pay according to the payment schedule or if you

This provision does not affect any warranties covering the vehicle which may be provided by the vehicle manufacturer.

Used Car Buyers Guide. The information you see on the window form for this vehicle is part of this contract. Information on the window form overrides any contrary provisions in the contract of sale.

Notice of Substitution of Contract. If Seller obtained this vehicle from General Motors Corporation (GM) on instalment credit terms, this contract will be substituted by Seller for and replace the Seller's obligation to pay GM for the vehicle you are purchasing. This substitution will not change the amount you have agreed to pay the Seller, the payment schedule, the finance charge or any of your rights and duties for this purchase. The terms of this contract set forth your entire and only obligation to Seller, GM, or any other holder of this contract.

NOTICE: ANY HOLDER OF THIS CONSUMER CREDIT CONTRACT IS SUBJECT TO ALL CLAIMS AND DEFENSES WHICH THE DEBTOR COULD ASSERT AGAINST THE SELLER OF GOODS OR SERVICES OBTAINED PURSUANT HERETO OR WITH THE PROCEEDS HEREOF. RECOVERY HEREUNDER BY THE DEBTOR SHALL NOT EXCEED AMOUNTS PAID BY THE DEBTOR HEREUNDER.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CREDIT LIFE AND/OR ACCIDENT AND HEALTH INSURANCE

The signer(s) of this contract hereby take(s) notice that group credit life insurance coverage and/or group credit accident and health insurance coverage will be applicable to this contract if so marked on the front of this contract and each such type of coverage will be written by the insurance company named. This insurance, subject to acceptance by the insurer, covers only the person signing the request for such insurance. The amount of charge is indicated for each type of credit insurance to be purchased. The term of insurance will commence as of the date the indebtedness is incurred and will expire on the original scheduled maturity date of the indebtedness. Subject to acceptance by the insurer and within 30 days, there will be delivered to the insured debtor a certificate of insurance more fully describing the insurance. In the event of prepayment of the indebtedness, a refund of insurance charges will be made where due

Dear Robert,

I saw your ad in the APA Yearbook. My family has a farm outside of Port Jervis, N.Y. I'm interested in purchasing some Black Minorcas (and possibly other breeds) from you to be sent to the farm. Please let me know if you still have anything for sale this year. I know that it's getting late in the season, but hopefully I may be able to get some chicks or hatching eggs from you. Please let me know if you'll have anything available. I'm enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

June 14, 1993

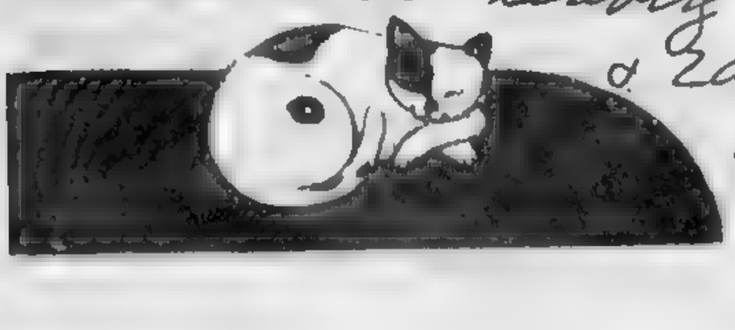

Dear Robert,

I hope you're all right. It's been a long time since I hear from you and I'm getting worried. Your family history isn't very reassuring.

So, listen. I'm going to be on vacation for the week before July 4. Is there any way you could come & visit me? I really need you to help me with my landscaping. You're so good at that stuff & I don't even know where to start and I can't afford a landscaper.

I really can't afford anything - not even a phone call (I used up my quota this month). After 8 years, my car finally started costing me money (like $500 for a clutch) and when the a/c quit on me, it was the last straw. I went out last Saturday & bought a new car - a Honda Civic. So now, I have yet another loan. The American Dream.

I'm sure I'll like my car (getting it Thursday) and I still like my house, but it's pretty lonely out here. Everyone seems to be leaving New York. Carol & Zach moved to one of the suburbs of Washington, D.C., for example. She keeps sending me cards telling me to write but never gives me her address. Even my friend Pat is moving in with some guy in New Jersey.

My mother has one foot out the door but still can't sell her co-op. My aunt & uncle just bought a condo in Florida & my cousin Charles, the actor, is moving to Sarasota. I never thought he would leave the Broadway theatres.

Remember when we lived in the city & just picked ourselves up & went to Chinatown or to some bar or tea house or the Staten Island Ferry? I really miss that. I feel safer here and it's a better life, but it's not much fun. Everyone here has 2.5 children.

So, could you let me know if you're okay and if maybe you could come & visit? I figure if I don't hear from you before my vacation, I'll try & call after 9 some weekend. Oh?! You're not going to disappear on me are you? It's almost our 26th anniversary?

Write or call (516 423 9473) soon

Ben

Dear Mike,

Thanks for your letter of 5/14/93. I'm sorry that I couldn't answer your letter until now.

I don't have any Minorcas but I may have some standard Partridge Rock, Rose Comb Rhode Island Red, and B.B. Red Modern Games in a month or so; all young birds about 6 months old.

Are you interested in birds to show or birds for around the farm?

I do know a guy in Virginia who has some very nice

S.C. Black Minorcas. His name is: [Frank HARRIS

Maybe he has some eggs or chicks.
I've never had a better year for hatching and raising chicks and I can hardly wait for the Fall and winter shows.

Dear Robb!

I enjoyed your letter and I wish I was at Columbus Last NOV But I was'nt. I saw the show by Vidio tape. Dennis M your filmed it for me.

Im sorry the Red Boys were not so friendly at Columbus. Sometimes they are so busy trying to make a sale that they are look "Fellowship!!

I hope Adrian Rolander from Minn was friendly to you. You bought stock from him once upon a time he should at least have some friendship to you.

Fancy as our most important target. Then our favorite breed we Love & want to push.

Down in the South its old English. Large Fowl are odd & not in. However, I dont worry I win my share & I only shoot for Champ Large Fowl & one day the Judges will give me Best Bird of Show.

Its a Bantam World down here & when you have a 50 & 50 Bantam Club Show some think only a Bantam can be 1st Bird of the Show. Not so if its a A.P.A. show.

I will not be going to Columbus this yeer so I couldnt swap birds with you. But next yeer Maybe I could ship you some 2 dozzen eggs in a big Box & you could ship me Bant 2 dz.

Rose Comb Eggs. I only need a couple of good chicks as I want to cross them to my S.C. Hollywood Line. I WANT to put a Rose Comb on a Hollywood Female.

Ive got a 3 yr Line Breeding program all set up once I get the Rose Combs to Cross them with.

This year I crossed a excessive Black Color Cull of Lee Roy Jones to my EW Reese Bantams. Boy did I get a big surprize. next pen I winged in my males from the Dark Blood Pen I shortned my wing both by 1" & I got 1" extra in both of Back. I got Super type & much much darker Surface color.

So I will have 5 special mailing for Bantam next year.

In 3 yrs I should have the Bantams as good as the Large Fowl.

I got 14 White Rock chicks from my old Friend Jim Voltz of Kentucky Washington. He has Oliver Bowen Blood & has been breeding Rocks for 8 yrs. He just got his 1st Pullet for the APA all on White Rock Large Fowl.

I Plan to keep 2 cks & 4 Pullets & Put Yogeater a super strain of White Rocks. Then I am going to send Jim 3 yrs from now 30 chicks of his own Blood Lines Back to him. This will give him a big boost of Vigor Called "Strain Hetrosis!"

About the article on Breeding Hens & Hatching eggs with them I would like to have a article in the Poultry Press on that Subject.

Maybe we could chit chat about you, Your Rose Lyndon & what you have learned about them & them go into how to use broody Hens.

We could run it maybe Nov or Dec of this year. You could write it out in long hand on the subject & I could ask 1 or 2 questions on the subject.
We could talk on the phone some weekend & I could type the personal interview.

This weekend Jim goes to North Mississippi & visit my mother in law. On Sat Jim interviews a son of a famous Red Breast of the 1920's & 30.
they had Harold Tompkins blood & who is winner in the shows & the RBP contest.

I plan to use it in the 1994 year Book. the book is only a dream or idea. But if we get 8 or 10 articles it could be a good bread book.

I'll come up with 2 names
the Rhode Island Red Year Book or Red Hen Tails 1994.

IN the 20's & 30's they had many Red Hen Tails year books with the list of the names of the RI Red Club member in 1924 they had 5000
members & 50,000 people got the Rhode Island Red Journal delivered to there Homes each month.

Well I've got to get this to the Post office. write me a article on Woody hens & will plan on using it in the future. I enjoy your article in the Poultry Press.

Hope to hear from you soon.

Yours for a better RI Red

"How about air-quality canaries on every flight?"

• •

Mr. Stempel is being paid thirty thousand dollars as a consultant, his advice has rarely been sought. "A couple of weeks ago, I had dinner with John Turturro," he says. "He seemed like a nice fellow, but I'm not overly impressed with celebrities."

HIGH FLIERS

DOWN in SoHo, they're trying to teach chickens how to fly. It's happening at the New Museum, on Broadway between Prince and Houston Streets, and it's mainly an artistic endeavor, not a scientific one. "I wanted to make a piece that commented on this entire concept we have of evolution," said Andrea Zittel, the artist responsible for the strange display. It's a coop consisting of four wooden compartments, cobbled together side by side. Each contains three vertically stacked nests, mounted at different heights. The first compartment holds live chickens (two bantam hens, one bantam cock); the others will remain birdless until a new generation moves in. The top-level nests have plastic tubes, which will lead eggs laid in those nests into the neighboring compartment, where they will be incubated. Since only the eggs in the highest nests reach the incubators in the next compartment, only the offspring of the strongest-winged hens survive. Each compartment represents the development of a new generation, and in each compartment the nests become higher. Ms. Zittel hopes that by compartment No. 4 she'll have a new strain of flying chickens.

The piece is called "Breeding Unit for Reassigning Flight," and it's part of a show called "The Final Frontier," in the museum's main gallery. Ms. Zittel, who is from a small town in Southern California called Escondido, said, "It's not about the birds, it's about structure." Her breeding contraption could produce flying chickens, but she thinks that, realistically, it would take at least two years of breeding for that to happen. Ms. Zittel reads books on poultry raising ("Quail Manual: Dedicated to the Successful Propagation of Coturnix Laying Quails") and industry magazines (Poultry Digest, Egg Industry), so she knows her way around the bird-breeding world. "It's this whole idea of purity and hygiene," she said. "They make models of birds like models of cars."

Ms. Zittel has been in the news before. We found a picture of her in one of the city's trendier magazines, looking almost winsome with a chicken on her head. She's a tall woman, with a broad, pleasant face, and a fresh, alpine complexion. She said she's been breeding chickens with real purpose for a while now, and that she also emphasizes woodwork and clothing in her art. Her bantam show birds—she has twelve at the moment—are an elegant bunch, with elaborate names like Silver Sea Bright and Black Silkie. "Within five years, I'm hoping to create a new breed," Ms. Zittel said. "I think my bantam chickens could be the luxury pet of the nineteen-nineties—the way miniature horses were in the nineteen-seventies."

On being asked about the artistic aspects of her work with chickens, she looked pensive, and said, "I first had the idea of raising a chicken from the egg and then killing it and having it stuffed. I wanted to explore the issues of possession and ownership—of whether giving a being life gives you the right to end that life. But when the time came I couldn't bring myself to do it. I had all those birds running around my studio, and I agonized for months about how to kill one of them—what method to use. I even chose the one I would kill—the meanest one of the bunch—but I just couldn't do it. Instead, I felt this desire to find a way to organize and control them, so I began to study books about breeding and bird management."

Like many artists, Ms. Zittel has had her struggles. She's twenty-seven years old, and for a long while she worked for low wages as an assistant in a downtown gallery. She lived in a dingy two-hundred-square-foot Brooklyn storefront, and for a year she didn't have a telephone. From these pinched circumstances she has cultivated what she calls "a luxury of minimalization." She will wear the same outfit (a black faille skirt, usually, and a crisp white shirt) six months straight (she has different pairs), and then replace it. "By always wearing the same thing, you liberate a lot of time," she said. And that is a good thing, because her chicken contraptions are catching on. Last week, she took a breeding unit to Venice, for the Bienniale. ♦ film about it all. One of the stars, John Turturro, is playing Herbert Stempel, a winning contestant who enjoyed brief national celebrity before testifying to Congress that the show had been rigged. "I've never played a living person before," Mr. Turturro said, during a rehearsal break last week. "Herbie is so vulnerable that I want to do right by the guy."

Mr. Stempel, who has been retained by Mr. Redford as a consultant, is now sixty-six years old, has hair streaked with gray, and lives with his second wife and two parakeets (named Adam and Eve) in a small, two-bedroom apartment in Forest Hills. "I didn't have a happy childhood," he says. "My father died when I was seven and a half, and I had a poor relationship with my mother. By 1956, I had spent eight years in the Army to get away from her. But I've always had a retentive memory, so that year I decided to take the test to be on 'Twenty-One,' which was one of the biggest of the shows then. I got the highest score ever, and they put me on. I started winning, and that meant I stayed on the show. It was a sensation. I got letters from Army buddies asking me for money. Old ladies would stop me on the street, pinch my cheek, and say, 'Such a smart boy.'"

Mr. Stempel says the show was fixed from the start. "The producer, Dan Enright, came to me and said the only way to get on the show was to play it his way. They told me all the questions and all the answers. Enright told me to shut up and pay attention to my lessons. I shouldn't have gone along with it, but I did. This was my first break ever. Eventually, though, Enright thought it was time for a change, and they brought in Charles Van Doren. He was the scion of a famous literary family, and they made it into a big cultural battle—City College, which I was attending at the time, against Columbia, where he was teaching. They portrayed me as what would be called a nerd today. My last show came down to a single question: Who won the Oscar for best picture of 1955? I knew it was 'Marty'—I'd seen it three times—but they made me say 'On the Waterfront,' and that was the end of me on the show."

Mr. Stempel shakes his head and says, "After I took this dive, I saw Van Doren go on to bigger and better things. He went on the 'Today' show. He was on the cover of Time. After ascending to the pinnacle, I was thrust back into obscurity. I had won forty-nine thousand five hundred dollars, but I was bitter. I had been thrust into the outer darkness, and I wanted revenge."

In 1959, Mr. Stempel testified before a congressional subcommittee. Later, Mr. Van Doren admitted that he, too, had been given the questions and the answers in advance of each show. Mr. Enright said at the hearings that his television career was over. (Nevertheless, he continued to produce quiz shows until his death, last year.) Mr. Stempel was vindicated. But it did not make him happy. "This thing really crushed me," he says. "I became very depressed for a very long time."

Mr. Stempel goes into a bedroom and takes an Encyclopædia Britannica "Book of the Year" from a shelf. He points to a line on the masthead: "Charles Van Doren, Vice President, Editorial." "It burns me up when I see that," he says. Mr. Van Doren lives in Connecticut and has never publicly discussed the quiz shows. As for Mr. Stempel, he worked for several years in a hosiery business run by his first wife's family, and then he taught social studies in the New York City public schools. Since 1984, he has been a records searcher for the city Department of Transportation.

Mr. Redford began shooting the movie, tentatively called "Quiz Show," late last month. The climactic congressional hearings will be filmed in the library of the New-York Historical Society. (The financially strapped society has been promised a benefit screening.) Though

"Of course, until they appoint a new N.E.A. chairman I'm in limbo."

AIN'T WE GOT FUN!

Ideas have enormous influence on the decisions we make as individuals and as a society – particularly those ideas that we accept as describing "how the world works" Once such an idea is broadly accepted, the collective mindset becomes very difficult to change. Even intellectually compelling evidence that the idea, if ever accurate, is accurate no longer, may have little immediate impact. New metaphors in the form of mathematical demonstrations are certainly not powerful enough to help break through the resistance to change, particularly if the old idea appeals to our egos and is important to religious or quasi religious convictions.

An often used illustration of both the importance of ideas and how difficult they are to change is the history of the Ptolemaic theory. Belief that the earth was the center of the universe was very gratifying. It reinforced religious beliefs about the importance of man and his relation to God and consequently the importance of the priests who served as the link in this relationship. The day to day life of most people in Western Civilization was profoundly influenced by the idea and its consequences. However, while the theory seemed to work in most practical situations, with the passage of time and closer scrutiny, it became clear to some that the theory no longer explained the observable facts. Nevertheless, Copernicus was careful not to publish his great work explaining a new theory until shortly before his death in 1543. Galileo, less cautious (or more naive), was punished and made to publicly recant his heresy of supporting the Copernican theory. Yet, eventually the Copernican view triumphed, because once people knew what to look for, the evidence was in the skies. Interestingly, Copernicus' treatise was not removed from the church's index of forbidden books until 1757, well after Newton had revolutionized the way people thought about the way things work.

There may be an analogous situation today involving an idea that, for a long time by current standards, has profoundly influenced the way we imagine an economy works. The idea is the equilibrium principal, the concept that most economic activity can be thought of as tending to converge to a single point (or line) where activities are in balance; ie, at the equilibrium price, buyers approximately equal sellers and the market, in economic parlance "clears". While outside events may change the price at which clearing occurs, the main idea is that for any given set of conditions, there is a single equilibrium toward which economic activity tends. Unlike the Ptolemaic theory, economists recognize equilibrium theory as a simplifying assumption for the purpose of analysis. Nevertheless, the concept has a penetrating effect on the way one imagines the economic world will work if we leave it alone . . . and the distinction between a simplifying assumption and the divine order of things often tends to blur with time.

But over the past few years, mathematicians and other scientists, with the help of technology in the form of cheap computing power, have begun to question the single equilibrium hypothesis. One reason for this questioning is the discovery that the very types of equations used in equilibrium analysis can also produce multiple rather than single equilibriums. In other words, rather than a single "answer", there may be 4 or 8 or 16, all of them "right". As these new mathematical metaphors call the equilibrium hypothesis into question, other scientists (including some economists) have begun to look at real world evidence in a different light.

While the equilibrium hypothesis has many applications, one serves to illustrate the importance of an idea. Traditional equilibrium theory tends to imply that as technology spreads throughout the world, per capita national incomes will tend to converge. Similarly, the theory also implies that within countries the incomes of different ethnic or class groups or regions will also converge. This idea has provided support for a hands off, "don't worry, be happy, everything will work out in the end" approach to public policy. Like the Ptolemaic theory, the idea is both inherently satisfying to almost everyone and fiercely protected by the high priests of certain economic schools of thought. Regardless of the accuracy of the idea as a simplified description of the way the world works, until recently it has had little competition. Now the very concept that multiple equilibriums can exist may change this dominance. Just as people in Galileo's time began to look at the skies a different way, we may look at the evidence of the world around us differently.

To understand how we might look at things differently, it is helpful to examine some very mundane concepts and see how they might translate to support a multi equilibrium hypothesis as a better explainer of how things work than one that calls for a single equilibrium.

Positive feedback is not exactly a new idea. Consciously or otherwise, many of us use positive feedback every day in our relations with our children, spouses, employees, bosses and co-workers. In addition to being more pleasant than continually acting the nag, positive feedback that focuses on reinforcing behavior patterns that we like or believe to be valuable, works.

The idea that luck or chance plays an important part in our day to day life is not new either. Often, very minor events early in our lives have very dramatic later consequences, for good or ill. I met my wife of 35+ years because my surname began with a "T" and a neighbor and friend of my then wife to be, had a surname beginning with a "V", placing us in the same homeroom. Do you know anyone, no matter how self reliant, who does not recognize that luck or blind chance played a large part in shaping his or her life?

All of us also know about becoming locked into grooves or ruts. They are the flip side of the same coin. We want to groove our golf swing and get out of the rut of watching TV when we think we should be taking a walk or reading a good book. We know that habits, once locked in, are difficult to change. To change takes a great deal of conscious effort, often over a long period of time. Frequently change occurs only with the help of some outside agent or event, as when my young son asked me 25 years ago why I smoked cigarettes if they caused cancer.

It also comes as no great shock to most people that the factors that create many personal grooves and ruts in this world tend to reinforce themselves and deepen the trench. Does anyone doubt that depression feeds on itself or that confidence is self reinforcing?

We also know that feedback, luck, grooves, ruts and self reinforcement are related and interact with each other to produce the people we have turned out to be. To those who point out that genes have a great deal to do with who we are, I will point out that no one I know chose his or her parents. Further, as a parent, I do not recall any conscious control over which genes I was transmitting to my children at the time they were conceived. Upon checking with my wife, she doesn't either. While there may be some Darwinian forces at work in mate selection, from the perspective of any individual person, it helps to be lucky when the genes are passed out.

These personal observations of life, that are far from new, seem equally applicable to the way things work in the less personal world we observe every day. Why does a Silicon Valley become a magnet for high tech business? Why does a neighborhood or a town become one that attracts expensive homes or inexpensive homes or neglected homes? Whatever combination of circumstances, accident, or luck that causes a type of business to start here rather than there or certain types of neighborhoods to cluster in this suburb or section rather than that, the trend once started, takes on a self reinforcing life of its own.

Why do some products or businesses never take off when similar and sometimes technically inferior products or less well managed businesses succeed? Let us imagine that product A and B are introduced at the same time and tend to be exclusive: ie, you will buy one or the other but not both. A friend happens to be the first purchaser of either. He is unable to decide which is the better product so buys A based on the flip of a coin. A performs satisfactorily and when you ask him, he tells you how good A is. You also buy A and tell your friends, who tell their friends and so on. Now some people will still buy B, but, because of the flip of a coin and some chatty friends, A has "the big Mo". A soon has a larger share of the market and because of higher volume, can lower its price. What's more, people become afraid to buy B because it won't be compatible, they can't get service or parts, etc, etc. Before long, B is either gone or relegated to a weak secondary position. Sound familiar? Luck, feedback, self reinforcement, locked in grooves or ruts are all common occurrences in the marketplace. Sophisticated marketing managers are well aware of the role of the fickle finger of fate when new products are introduced and do everything they can to get lucky. So do sophisticated CEO's.

If lock in, grooves, ruts, feedback and self reinforcement are all real in our micro day to day lives and in the micro economic lives of businesses and communities, why should not the same hold true for the macro economic lives of countries, regions and indeed the entire world. Cannot luck, positive feedback and self reinforcement effectively lock in a nation, a region, a class, or an ethnic group to a groove of high tech prosperity, a rut of poverty, famine and hopelessness or any of several levels in between? Perhaps the "poor boy makes good" stories and the "rich family loses all" stories are just the statistical aberrations at the tails of the bell shaped curve that represents the permanent relative economic status of various groups in a world of multiple equilibriums. In a complicated, high technology society, a more accurate economic theory might imply that, all else being equal, the rich will in fact get richer and the poor, poorer. In a pure textbook economy, multiple equilibriums may not only be possible, but inevitable as a result of the luck, feedback and self reinforcement that tend to lock in certain groups to relative positions.

Now everyone knows that pure, textbook economies do not exist, so neither a single equilibrium theory or a multiple equilibrium theory is a perfect description of how the world works. Reality is very messy and it seems unlikely that any theory will offer a totally satisfactory picture. In the less complex physical world, Newton's theories turned out not to be perfect and refinements in relativity and quantum theory will undoubtedly continue to occur. Nevertheless, a generally accepted idea that describes how things work in theory can have a significant influence on how we think about ourselves and other people and on how we act, both as individuals and as a society. If we assume that the natural tendency of an unfettered textbook economy is to convergence of living standards, both within and among countries, we may well act differently than if we assume the natural tendency of such an economy is to lock in multiple states of economic well being.

Ideas are important. Whether the single equilibrium idea is fatally flawed or whether the mutiple equilibrium approach is really a better, more useful idea is a debate that in one sense is just starting and in another has been going on forever. Perhaps the debate awaits a giant like Newton, Einstein or Keynes to bring it into focus. On the other hand (to use a highly technical bit of economic jargon), perhaps there are already so many giants quarreling about something for which hard evidence is difficult to come by that no one will be able to rise above the fray.

While we are waiting, no doubt breathlessly, for the outcome, the lyrics of Gus Kahn and Ray Egan and the catchy tune of Richard Whiting provide solace for us common men and women, of whom God made so many.

"In the meantime, in between time, Ain't we got fun."

Dear Mr. Powell,

I didn't bother you last year as I did in 1991, but my golden Hyondottes are in trouble. They are so inbred they are becomming weak and their eggs hatch poorly. If you can sell me a male by Parcel Post I can send you one of my shipping boxes. Please consider this and write me your price.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Myers,

Thank you for your letter of June 8th. I'm sorry to say that I no longer have any Golden-Laced Wyandottes. Early this spring, a neighbor's dogs got through a fence and got all of the Golden-Laced Wyandottes that I had wintered over. The dogs also got a beautiful Speckled Sussex male & a good breeding pair of Single comb Rhode Island Reds.

I know a guy who has some good G-L. Wyandottes. I'll make some inquiries and see if he has a good male for sale. I'll let you know what I find out.

ALL-Orp

The Official publication of
UNITED ORPINGTON CLUB
Devoted to all Orpingtons, Standard and Bantam, and to the Breeders of this fine fowl. JULY1993.

FROM THE SECRETARY

The hatching season is finally over. My incubator is off. I counted my young birds the other day and I had 130 all the way from nearly ready to lay to still in the brooder. I have culled a few since then but I still have more to do. One of my goals this year was to get rid of the white ear lobes on the females. I still have a ways to go to get this but I have some good pullets with no white showing yet. I know this condition comes with age so I will just have to wait and see.

I ended the season with over 20 White Orp chicks from my own stock and 6 that I hatched from some eggs Thomas Dowden sent me from West Virginia. I sent him some Buff and Blue eggs in return. I have one customer that still wants some eggs of all 4 varieties of Orp Bantams I will send them next Monday and then break up my breeding pens. I usually keep all my old females in one pen with no male when I am not saving eggs. This year that is only 18 birds.

Don Chandler, Dist. 7 Director and Rev Jim Hall Oklahoma State Representative, have awarded the following meets in their areas. Dist 7 Meet Oklahoma State Poultry Dec. 4 & 5 1993. Oklahoma State Meet, Sooner Classic Claremore, OK Nov. 6 & 7 1993. Special State Meet Cunthree, OK, Oct. 16 1993

The Ballot for 1994 & 95 Officers, Directors, and Representatives will be in the October ALL-ORP. If I don't hear otherwise those folks in office now will be placed on the Ballot for the next two years. Any one else that wants to serve can get on the ballot by notifying me. If you nominate some one else be sure they agree to serve before you send their name in. I will run for Secretary Treasurer for one more term. But will not be disappointed if someone else wants to have the job. I don't think I will be able to attend any more National Meets that are East of the Mississippi River. It would probably be better if someone from the Midwest or Eastern part of the Country had the job. That is where most of the members are. We need a District Director for Dist. 4, KY, NC, TN, VA, & WV.

We are still on line to have our National Meet with the APA National at Roseville, Calif. in January of 1994. We have some special awards pledged but we still need some more to make it more meaningful for our West Coast Members. John Monaco is our State Rep. for California and He is the man to contact. Or I can pass the word on to him. John's address is:

We are still growing, but just barely. We had seven new members since the April ALL-ORP but unfortunately we had to drop six because we didn't renew their membership. With our new system of paying dues we drop members in July and January. If we can hold even then we will have gains in April and October. We are up to 71 members, we can still be over 80 by the first of the year.

Congratulations on you articles in the Poultry Press, I have got you picked for my sucessor. The sooner the Better. Warren.

IOWA STATE UOC MEET:

Conrad Loupee the Iowa State Rep. for the UOC just called to say the State Fair catalogue was printed without listing the UOC Iowa State Meet. The fair will be in Des Moines, Iowa. The poultry show will be August 20 to 22. You don't have to be an Iowa resident to enter the poultry show, and it will be the UOC State Meet.

ARE YOUR DUES PAID

We had six members that joined the club before March 1992 and did not renew their membership, so they were dropped from our mailing list. We want to keep everyone in the club that we can. It is not fair for those that pay to be supplorting those that don't.

My records show that your dues are paid to Month 1 Year 94 If I am wrong let me know. I make mistakes all the time.

We need new members. I am including two Applications for Membership with this ALL-ORP. Please cut them out and pass them to other Orpington folks.

This year Anne Davenport is in charge of the arrangements. We thank her for working on this meeting and ask that you return the enclosed reservation card to her right away and no later than July 2nd. Several have asked to purchase extra halves of chicken to take home and we have also made a place on the card for you to note the number you want.

You are ask to bring your own table service and a covered dish to pass. Rolls, butter and a drink will be provided. Each half of chicken will cost $3.25 and can be paid for that night.

Dear John,

attached is an article on the Sherwood fowl that I mailed to Bill Wolff this morning. This article supplements nicely, I think, your very interesting Column on the poultry breeds of yesteryear in the July 1993 Poultry Press also enclosed are a couple enlargements of the engraving in question.

Best regards,

Dear Bob;

Your recent letter with the enclosures regarding SHERWOODS was most welcome.At one time I had three copies of Burpee's THE POULTRY YARD.Two of which i sold to Them,the other went to a collector.As I recall your article was more descriptive than the "blurb" in the book.

I hope you and others interested in poultry will continue to search for these very scarce items.For over 50 years one of my happiest days were spent in old book stores.There area few still inoperation and I know a few things can be found.Not like in the past,when I could go into a book store and come out with a shoppoing bag full of books,magazines and other ephemera having been a little fussy about condition.No more,but in the past year I have found a few choice items.

If you ever get down this way stop in.I still have a few books that I have reserved for my grandchildren.

All the best,

pride in our ancestors, and high hopes for the future. Part of our display will be a bantam hen and her chicks (in a small cage) and a bantam rooster (in an adjoining cage). The Grange will take complete responsibility for feeding and watering the birds. We promise you that they will not be messy, smelly or dirty. The birds will be tended to daily by Grange members. In addition, part of our exhibit will be a 4'x8' framed display of nineteenth-century studio photographs.

We look foward, with enthusiasm, to participating in the Grange exhibits at the Wayne County Fair.

Dear Board Member:

There will be a special work session for our "New Building Project" on Tuesday, July 27, at 7:00 p.m. at the library. We are starting earlier because we have two major items on our agenda.

First, we have received a tentative furniture budget from our consultant, Bill Pierce. This will help us to get together some specifications that will be needed when our furniture is put out for bid. Sally Felix is attending our meeting; Tom Horlacher should also be here.

The second item on the agenda is the reorganization of our fund raising efforts. We must raise a minimum of $64,000 to meet the budget figure of $220,000 for fund raising. Joe Pascoe has been asked to head an organizational committee to get the drive on track once again. Joe will need your ideas and your help. We have a couple of names to start our list of workers. Your suggestions will be added to this list.

Please start thinking of possibilities for new board members. They must be, above all, willing workers, dedicated to building and maintaining a new library in Carbondale.

Yours truly,

Dear Program Chairman:

The Pennsylvania State University's Worthington Scranton Campus is proud to offer its 1993-94 Speakers Bureau to your organization. Please keep the brochure in a convenient location for quick referral if you have need for a speaker during the year.

The Bureau consists of 44 academic and professional men and women who are experts in their respective fields. They are prepared to offer you an interesting and informative presentation.

As an association, we know that you have specific areas of interest. The Worthington Scranton Campus can offer you several presentations which may deal directly with your needs. Talks such as, WHAT IS LANGUAGE by Dr. John Dolis; THE DELAWARE AND HUDSON'S GRAVITY RAILROAD by Dr. S. Robert Powell; ONE WOMAN'S POETRY: A READING by Eileen Soranno; and DEVELOPMENT OF COMMUNITY THEATRE: ORGANIZATION AND PRODUCTION by Walter R. Weber, are just a few of the topics that might be of particular interest to your group.

If you wish to schedule a speaker or if you have an inquiry concerning the Speakers Bureau, please phone the University Relations Office at 963-4459 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In order to allow sufficient time for proper arrangements, we ask that you call at least two weeks before your meeting date. It is necessary to have the exact date, time and location of the engagement available at the time of request. We would also encourage you to have a second choice of speaker, if possible. The Campus will make every effort to accommodate your needs. As a community service of the University, there is no charge for the use of the Speakers Bureau.

We hope you will find the Worthington Scranton Campus Speakers Bureau to be a valuable resource for your group. We look forward to serving you and thank you for your interest.

Sincerely,

Eileen J. Soranno

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
UNITED STATES MINT
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20220

ordered 8/26/93
Visa payment

Dear Mint Customer:

One of my goals at the United States Mint over the past year has been to encourage our talented staff to creatively reach beyond the limits of our traditional offerings. I am proud of the results. Our limited edition coin sets offered earlier this year were enthusiastically sought by collectors. I hope you agree that we have hit the target again.

It gives me great pleasure to announce the 1993 American Eagle Proof Coins with the traditional favorites including the gold four coin set, but also with an exciting new collection, The Philadelphia Set.

The Philadelphia Set celebrates the bicentennial of the Philadelphia Mint and consists of the three gold fractional coins and the silver one ounce coin produced at the Philadelphia Mint in 1993. In addition, we have included a special bonus — a silver medal minted to mark this important occasion. This special Philadelphia Bicentennial Medal will only be available in The Philadelphia Set. Please review the enclosed brochure for all the details.

You will be pleased to know that despite the recent surge in the price of gold, we have held our prices. And for almost every coin, we have maintained last year's low mintages.

This offering presents yet another opportunity — the Persian Gulf Veterans National Medal. Our goal in offering this congressionally authorized bronze medal is to give everyone the opportunity to express their appreciation to the men and women in our Armed Services for their dedication to duty and country in the Persian Gulf conflict. As mandated, the proceeds after costs will be applied to a fund that will in the future provide a silver version of the medal to all Persian Gulf veterans.

I hope you enjoy your 1993 American Proof Eagles and Persian Gulf Veterans National Medal, and I thank you for your continued interest in this fascinating hobby.

Sincerely,

David J. Ryder

David J. Ryder
Director of the Mint

P.S. Based on the response to the new products offered earlier this year, I encourage you to mail your order early. Mintages are strictly limited.

IMPORTANT:

The U.S. Mint reserves the right to accept or reject coin orders in any combination or option(s) it determines to be in its best interest. In the event a particular coin option is sold out, the Mint reserves the right to either process partial orders and make refunds, or return orders in their entirety. American Eagle gold proof coins will be available only until December 31, 1993, or a sellout, whichever comes first. If American Eagle silver coins have not sold out by December 31, 1993, they will remain available beyond that date

A truly unique collector's item.

Presenting THE PHILADELPHIA SET.

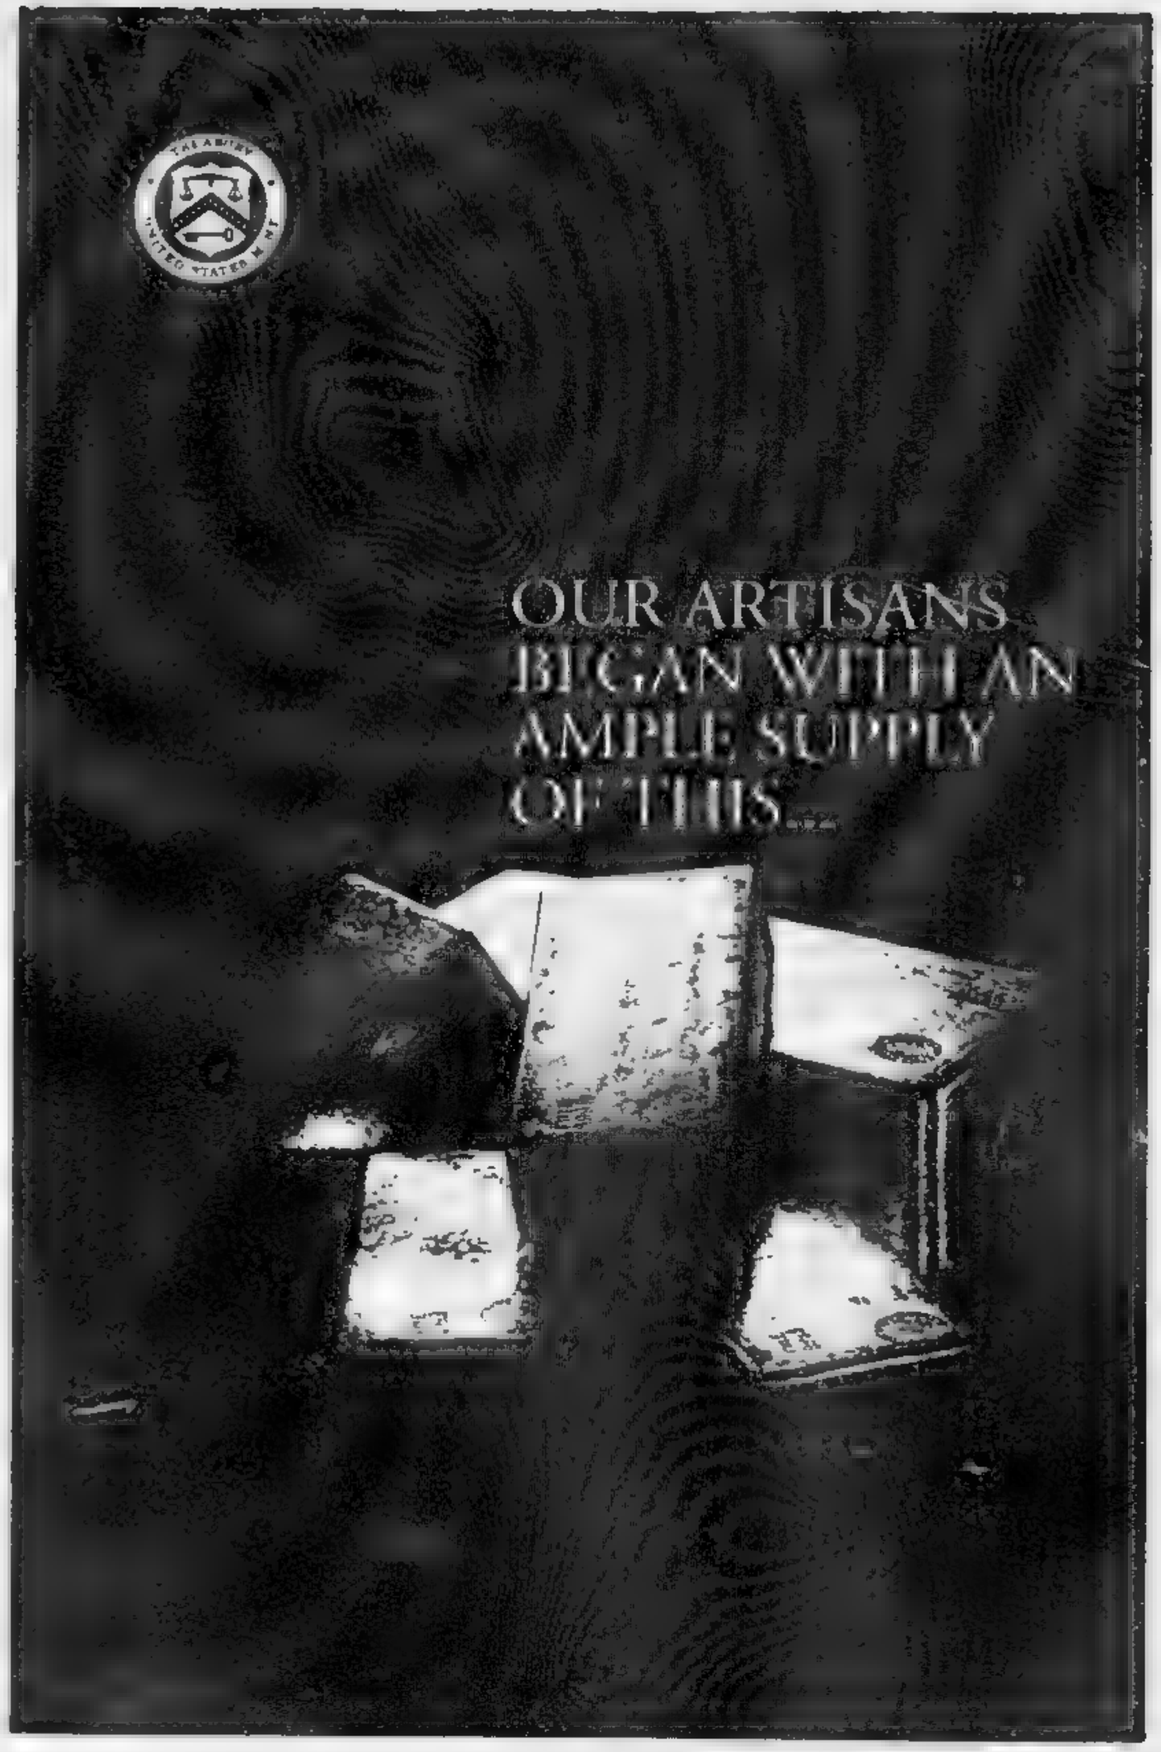

Commemorating U.S. Mint history.

Specially created for 1993 is The Philadelphia Set. It includes the one-half, one-quarter and one-tenth ounce American Eagle Proof Gold Coins, the one ounce Silver Coin, and a special silver medal commemorating the 200th anniversary of the striking of the first official U.S. coins at the Philadelphia Mint — all bearing the 'P' mint mark. We plan to offer this unique collection only in 1993, the first year the silver one ounce coin is being minted in Philadelphia. Next year, the minting of the gold fractional coins will move from the Philadelphia Mint to the West Point Mint. You won't want to miss this special numismatic opportunity.

PROOF COINS.

Where art meets gold.

Exquisite artwork against a lustrous background. A magnificent combination. But these fine collectibles offer more than beauty.

Low mintages mean enhanced collectibility.

The 1993 American Eagle Proof Coins are especially attractive, because they feature extremely low mintages. Just 55,000 one-quarter ounce gold coins and 70,000 one-tenth ounce gold coins will be minted this year. Better still, the one ounce and the one-half ounce gold coins' mintages are a mere 50,000 each.

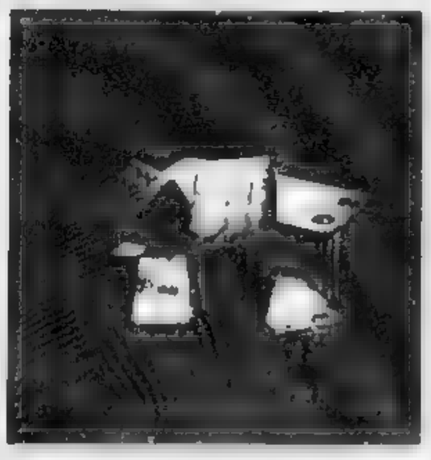

The four-coin set, a dramatic display piece.

With so few coins available, our handsome four-coin set offers added collectibility. In fact, we cannot even guarantee a minimum number of sets will be available, because some coins are also included in our newest product offering — The Philadelphia Set. Either of these sets will be officially sold out the moment any one of the individual coins sells out.

Complete your collection.

If you're a regular collector of American Eagle Proof Coins, you know the satisfaction of owning a complete set. If you're considering your first American Eagle, you're entering a time-honored tradition of quality and craftsmanship. You see, it's not enough that we use hand-finished dies and burnish our blanks to remove flaws. Every coin is carefully inspected by the United States Mint — to ensure you receive artistic perfection, year after year.

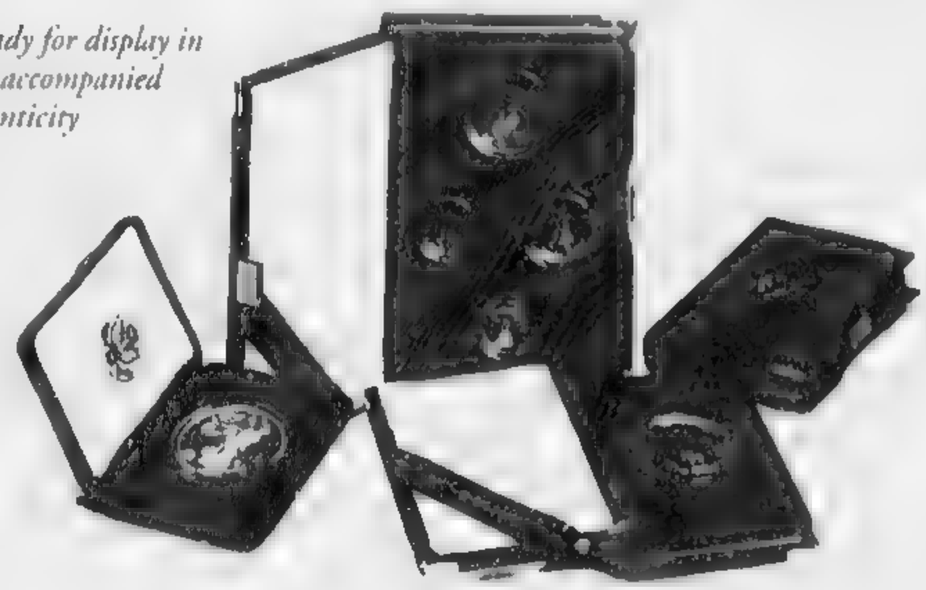

Beat the sellouts, order today.

Remember, low mintages not only mean enhanced collectibility, they mean quicker sellouts. So be sure your collection won't be without the 1993 American Eagle Proof Coins. Order yours today.

Art. American Eagle Proof Coins. Indeed, there is a close relationship. In fact, the gold coin's obverse is based upon a design created by Augustus Saint-Gaudens in 1906. Combine this intricate masterpiece with an ounce of gold, and you have a truly irresistible collectible.

Dear Robert:

Welcome back as a Penn State part-time faculty member for Fall Semester, 1993. We appreciate your continuing service as a member of our adjunct faculty.

As you may be aware, many changes are taking place within higher education across the country -- most of them related to decreasing financial support for public funding. Penn State has not been immune to budget cuts, but through a "futures" process has attempted to maintain quality by reviewing all programs and activities and making selective reductions while enhancing other areas -- rather than implementing "across the board" cuts. In general it appears that the process is working well, but it has caused us more than ever to reexamine our mission at this campus as part of the Penn State Commonwealth Education System. In particular, we are considering the feasibility of continuing some under-enrolled programs, and searching for opportunities to enhance programming through additional collaboration with the Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre campuses of Penn State.

At this campus, careful management has allowed for a number of enhancements including the addition of full-time faculty in nursing and mathematics, updating the computer and CAD Labs, converting D-14 to a state-of-the-art technology classroom, and changing D-16 to a more "learning-friendly" classroom. In addition, we are making structural changes in D-7 which are designed to improve service to all of our constituencies. And, we are increasing the pay rate for part-time faculty to $585/credit effective with the Fall Semester, 1993.

The future is bound to bring additional changes -- and always, we hope, improvements. We value your contributions, ideas, and suggestions. Thanks for the important role you play in delivering our most important product--high quality instruction to the students.

Sincerely,

Bruce

Salary as Poultry Superintendent : $200.00
Premiums won by birds : 286.50
$486.50

The Wayne County Fair and the Harford Fair happened so quickly that I really have the impression that they did not take place. It must be all the rushing around that made them seem so fleeting. My birds did very well at both fairs this year and I am very pleased. It is amazing how much money I made at both of them:

Horseface premium -	$245.00
Harford premium -	$286.50
Harford salary	$200.00
	$731.50

Not bad. That will buy a lot of chicken feed — about 70 bags.

THE COLUMBIAN VARIETY

By S. Robert Powell

To commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America in 1492 by Christopher Columbus, the World's Columbian Exposition, which was dedicated on October 23, 1892, and opened in May, 1893, was held in Chicago.

On display at that gigantic exposition, which covered 666 acres and which was attended by one of every ten Americans, were such wonders as the Pullman car, the linotype machine, the first ferris wheel, (which 2,160 people could ride at one time), and COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTES.

From the APA's THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION (p. 47) we learn (1) that this was the first time that Columbian Wyandottes were exhibited, and (2) that that variety was produced by crossing a White Wyandotte with a Barred Plymouth Rock.

The word "Columbian," it is important to remember, is the adjective that refers to "Columbus" or to "the time of Columbus." And so, COLUMBIAN Wyandottes were so named in order to commemorate the fact that they were first exhibited at the exposition that marked the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America.

The Columbian color pattern, of course, was around for a long time before the World's Columbian Exposition. Light Brahmas, which were admitted to THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION in 1874, bear the Columbian color pattern. Light Brahmas are known, as we all know, as Light Brahmas and not as Columbian Brahmas. Similarly, Buff Brahmas, which were recognized by the APA in 1924, are known as Buff Brahmas, and not as Buff Columbian Brahmas.

But all other breeds and varieties of poultry (with the exception of the bantam and standard Light Sussex) that bear the Columbian color pattern are identified as either Columbian or Buff Columbian.

The Columbian color pattern is recognized for the following breeds of standards: Light Brahmas, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, S.C. Leghorns, and Light Sussex (same as Columbian color pattern but male has white saddle). The Buff Columbian color pattern is officially recognized for only one breed of standards: Buff Brahmas.

In addition to the descriptions of the Columbian and Buff Columbian color patterns that are found in the APA's THE AMERICAN STANDARD OF PERFECTION and the ABA'S THE BANTAM STANDARD, the reader should consult two recent articles by Bob Arbuckle in the APA's FANCY FEATHERS APA NEWS AND VIEWS: "Surface and Undercolor in Buff Brahmas," Summer 1989, p. 12; "The Buff Columbian dialog, several months later," Spring 1990, p. 9.

Since it was 100 years ago this May that Columbian Wyandottes were first exhibited, wouldn't it be a good idea for individuals and clubs to sponsor specials at this year's shows for "Best Columbian" and "Best Buff Columbian" in both bantams and standards? Wouldn't that be a highly appropriate manner for the exhibition poultry fraternity to honor those breeders who created the Columbian and Buff Columbian color patterns? Wouldn't that be an entirely fitting way, at the same time, for the poultry fanciers of America to commemorate the 500th anniversary of the discovery of America?

The Perseid meteor shower to appear tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tonight, the sky won't be falling. But it may look like it, when an annual meteor shower puts on what astronomers say will be an unusually spectacular show.

The Perseid shower appears every August as Earth passes through a trail of debris left by Comet Swift-Tuttle. Tonight, people in the Northeast and in Europe and Asia will be able to see the most intense portions of the shower.

Astronomers figure this year's shower will be particularly intense, partly because the comet passed closer to Earth in its 130-year orbit than it has in more than 2,000 years.

The display could amount to a "storm," featuring hundreds of tiny meteors an hour entering and burning up in the Earth's atmosphere, said Suzanne Chippindale, an astronomer at the Hayden Planetarium in New York. A full-blown shower is called a storm and "literally looks like it's raining" meteors, she said.

The last time a show of this magnitude was visible from North America was in 1966, during the Leonid meteor shower, she said.

"I missed it, but some of my friends who saw it still fall speechless when the subject comes up," Chippindale said.

The possibility of any debris hitting Earth tonight is remote. Most of the fragments are about the size of a grain of sand, and while they will enter the atmosphere at up to 37 miles a second, they will burn up before hitting the ground.

Comet Swift-Tuttle was spotted in 1862 by astronomer Lewis Swift and Horace Tuttle, a Civil War soldier. Four years later, Italian astronomer Giovanni Schiaparelli realized the comet caused the Perseid Shower.

Schiaparelli calculated the comet would pass close to Earth again in 1981. For more than 100 years, Schiaparelli's prediction was considered correct.

But in the early 1970s, the little-known comet aroused the curiosity of Brian Marsden, an astronomer at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass.

Marsden said Tuesday that the more he went back through old sightings, the less sure he was that Swift-Tuttle would return in 1982. His investigations eventually took him back to 1737, when, he realized, a Jesuit missionary who had followed a comet for a week had seen Swift-Tuttle.

By following records of naked-eye observations made by Chinese astronomers as far back as 69 B.C., Marsden calculated that Swift-Tuttle passes close to earth roughly every 130 years.

Marsden made one other calculation that many found more than a bit unsettling: Comet Swift-Tuttle could collide with the Earth in 2126.

He softened that prediction last year after analyzing more data with earthbound telescopes. The collision, if it ever happens, won't take place for another 1,000 years, he said.

The impact would be greater than that of the Tunguska meteorite, which scorched a 20-mile radius and flattened a Siberian forest in 1908, he said. While that meteorite was just a tiny chunk of a comet several feet in diameter, Swift-Tuttle is more than five miles wide, Marsden said.

AUGUST WAS A WONDERFUL MONTH FOR THE MOOSIC GRANGE: WE HAD A SUCCESSFUL YARD AND BAKE SALE AND WON A RIBBON ON OUR DISPLAY AT THE WAYNE COUNTY FAIR.

Dear Mark & Brian,

Sorry I wasn't home on Monday when you were here. I was at a Mosaic Grange meeting in Waymart at the time.

Two poultry auctions coming up soon:

1) Bath, NY — Sept. 18; starts at 930 A.M.

Bath is up by Corning. It's a good auction and the quality of the birds is usually good. Maybe it's too far to travel — about 150 miles & think.

2) Bloomsburg — October 9, starts at 10 A.M.

I'm sure that I will attend the Bloomsburg auction. I know that you are interested in going to Bloomsburg also. I'll call you in a few days to see if you're interested in going up to Bath. If you're interested in going to Bath, we'll go.

See you soon,

Robert

Dear Chuck,

The "Poverty Technician" (blood tester) application to the state of Pennsylvania requires two letters of recommendation. I would appreciate it if you would be willing to write one of those letters for me. I am asking George Schneider to write the other one.

As I understand it, you send your letter to me, and I send it to Harrisburg with my application.

Thanks for your help.

Sincerely,
Robert

Dear George, "Blood tester"

The "Poultry Technician" application to the state of Pennsylvania requires two letters of recommendation. I would appreciate it if you would be willing to write one of those letters for me. I am asking Chuck Campfield to write the other one.

As I understand it, you send your letter to me and I mail it to Harrisburg with my application.

Thanks for your help.

Sincerely

Robert
